Nine Die As Fire Razes Nursing Home

Flames Trap Patients; 10 Are Injured

GLEN ELLYN, Ill. (UPI)—Uncontrollable fire raged through an old, castle-like nursing home Friday, trapping elderly and crippled patients in their beds and killing at least nine persons.

The last hideously charred body was taken from the ruins of the Glen Ellyn Acres Nursing Home Friday night, almost seven hours after the flames swept the second floor of the rambling stucco and frame mansion.

A total of seven bodies, none of them identified, were found in the burned-out building. Another man was dead on arrival of burns at a hospital and Assistant Fire Chief Don Stoffregen, 58, suffered a fatal heart attack while manning a fire truck.

CALLS OFF SEARCH

Fire Chief James Brody called off the search for more bodies after the discovery of the last victim huddled on the first floor near the chimney. The body was brought out of the house by the eerie light of a portable spotlight.

Ten more of the 20 patients and seven employees of the home were hospitalized with burns and other injuries.

Families gathered at an emergency morgue, set up in the village hall of this suburban community 23 miles west of Chicago, to identify the victims.

The fire apparently started in the electrical wiring on the second floor of the home, an antique building known as "the castle" which was believed to be almost 100 years old. Only the walls of the building were left standing by nightfall and damage was estimated at $50,000.

Nurses, orderlies and firemen carried the survivors, many of them screaming, from the building as flames leaped 40 feet into the air. Many of the patients were unable to walk and had to be dragged out. A 200-pound bedfast woman was too heavy to carry and had to be abandoned to the flames.

Inside the holocaust, firemen and orderlies told how they were unable to save old persons even though they reached their sides in many cases, the would-be rescuers were driven back by

Judo Punch Ends Wedding Plans For Joan Davis

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Actress Joan Davis said Friday that her romance with real estate man Harvey Stock ended when he knocked her down with a judo punch.

"Plans for our marriage are definitely off," the 46-year-old comedienne told newsmen.

She and Stock were engaged two years.

She said Stock, 35, knocked her down Thursday in an argument in front of her Palm Springs home. She had him arrested on a misdemeanor complaint charging assault and battery.

Stock, freed on bail, told newsmen the argument arose after a drive from Los Angeles. It was over the key to the home.

"I had hidden the key somewhere outside the house," he said. "But when we pulled into the driveway I couldn't find it."

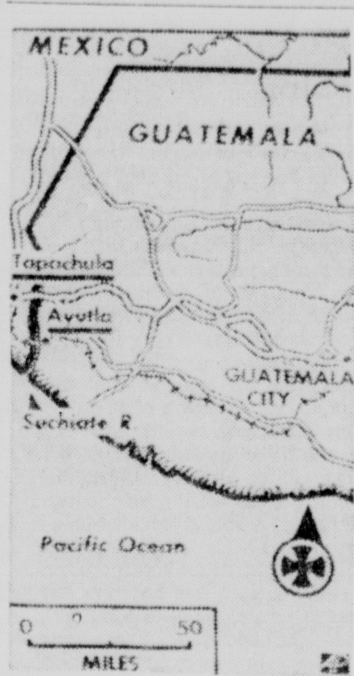

"When I told Joan the key was missing she hit the windshield of the car with her purse, and I pushed her. That's all there was to it."

Reporters told Joan of the explanation. "Then why," she asked, "do I have such a sore neck?"

Debbie's Divorce Trial Date Set

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Debbie Reynolds Friday asked for early trial of her suit for divorce from Eddie Fisher and the date was set as Feb. 17.

Her attorney told the court the two have reached a property settlement, terms undisclosed. He said she wants an early divorce so she can go to Spain at the end of the month to make a movie.

Old 'Grudge' Ends In Hail Of Gun Shots

CHICAGO (UPI)—For 21 years Edward Whitney nursed his hatred and bitterness against the Christian Science practitioner who had attended his little girl.

Whitney, a 58-year-old Birmingham Ala., insurance adjuster, was convinced that practitioner William F. Rubert, 69, was responsible for the death of his daughter, Kay, 10, in December, 1937.

Friday, Whitney walked into Rubert's office in the Orchestra Hall Building on Michigan Boulevard. Rubert was reading his Bible.

"How would you like to die?" the father grunted. "You murdered my little girl."

BULLETS FLY

The father drew a .32-caliber automatic from his coat pocket and started shooting.

His first bullet hit Rubert in the chest. The practitioner started running down the hallway, the gunman in pursuit and still firing. More bullets hit Rubert in the arm and hand.

Rubert found refuge in a waiting elevator which started down immediately. Whitney got a last shot through the doorway which barely missed the operator, Francis J. Houston, 46.

Houston said the bleeding practitioner was taken to a hospital.

Value Of Stocks Up $1.6 Billion

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and metals paced a brisk upturn which added an estimated $1,678,000,000 to the quoted value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange Friday.

Grains ran from a few cents to more than $1 a share with chemicals, airlines and building materials also displaying strength. There were 684 stocks which scored gains while 339 declined.

ROCKET EXPERT TESTIFIES

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dr. Werner von Braun said Friday it would take the United States five years to overtake Russia in the intercontinental ballistic missile field even if this country decided to go all out.

The German-born rocket expert, head of developmental work at the Army's Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., told Senate investigators he was speaking from a technological standpoint, without reference to numbers of ICBMs.

Ailing Green Gives Up Key Senate Post

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Theodore Francis Green (D-R.I.) at 91 the oldest man ever to serve in Congress, resigned Friday as chairman of the key Foreign Relations Committee because of defective eyesight and hearing.

He stepped down, unexpectedly, saying his two infirmities made his work "harder, and perhaps less alert and spry despite his age, he said he had the 'physical stamina' to carry on as a senator and committee member.

FULBRIGHT IN LINE

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) is next in line to succeed Green under the Senate's time-honored seniority system. Fulbright, who at 53 is 38 years Green's junior, is a one-time Rhodes Scholar and former president of the University of Arkansas.

But Fulbright, known to his friends as "Bill," is perhaps most widely recognized as founder of the Fulbright Exchange Program, which has brought thousands of foreign students to this country and sent Americans abroad to study.

The Foreign Relations Committee met quickly after Green's resignation became known and unanimously asked him to defer his decision, but he refused.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) announced that the Senate would act shortly, probably early next week, to accept Green's resignation and appoint a successor. Green announced his resignation in a letter to Johnson.

Auxiliary CD Force Plans Due

March 1 was set as the date to formulate plans for a training program in West Monroe for auxiliary police, firemen and a rescue squad at a meeting of Civil Defense officials, law enforcement and fire department heads and citizens last night.

In stressing a need for these additional personnel, West Monroe Civil Defense Director Joe Rutledge said, "It's most difficult to arouse interest in civil defense until some catastrophe illustrates how helpful an effective disaster relief organization could be."

VOLUNTEERING

Police Chief Jeff Caldwell will be in charge of training auxiliary police while Fire Chief E. C. Taylor will direct training of emergency firemen. They will be assisted by the state police and parish sheriff's department.

Volunteering to form a local rescue team was B. A. Bohannon, security officer for Olin Mathliessen. He will work with civil defense officials to obtain and man a rescue truck.

All three groups will be prepared to take care of any emergency.

Chilling Cold Spreads Over Large Sector

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A solid punch of zero cold slammed into the Midcontinent Friday, sending a sharp chill across the country from the Northern Plains to the Atlantic Coast.

Rain turned to snow in New England, rain splashed the Gulf Coast region and sprinkled the Northwest.

The new cold snap was expected to skid temperatures to 35 below zero in northern Minnesota and North Dakota and the 30s in Louisiana and Mississippi. The mercury remained below zero at midday from the Northern Rockies to Lake Superior, and subzero readings were in prospect for much of the upper Midwest and northern Great Lakes region.

Temperatures took a 20-degree plunge as the leading edge of the cold swept across the central Appalachians.

Moderate to heavy rains along the Gulf Coast in 24 hours accumulated 6.65 inches in Kinder, La., and 3.78 in Lake Charles. Nearly an inch of rain soaked

Giant Blast Rips Chemical Plant

FOLLANSBEE, W. Va. (UPI)—A giant explosion ripped the Koppers Co. chemical plant at nearby East Steubenville, W. Va., Friday night and authorities immediately issued a call for all available emergency equipment within a 25 mile radius.

The blast, which sent flames and smoke high into the air, shook the Follansbee and Steubenville, Ohio area.

Monroe Postal Business Soars

Business in the Monroe Post Office soared during 1958, compared with the previous year, according to a report released yesterday by Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn.

"Receipts were $614,635.12 last year — $72,491.69 more than the 1957 total," he pointed out, adding that this includes sale of stamps, money orders, registered mail, and mailing of packages.

ON MISSISSIPPI RIVER

Boiler Of Boat Explodes, 8 Die

HELENA, Ark. (UPI)—Eight men were killed and two other persons were injured Friday when the boiler of a log-loading boat in the Mississippi River exploded 20 miles downstream from here. One of the victims was M. G. Weeks of Greenville, Miss., junior owner of the boat and secretary and general manager of the Choctaw Transportation Co.

The boat was pulling into the riverbank to load logs on barges standing by for delivery to the Chicago Mill and Lumber Co., plant here.

BLOWN OFF BOAT

Weeks' wife and a Negro cook were blown out of the work boat and were brought to a hospital here suffering shock and injuries.

Ceola Hudson, 38, of Greenville, said Mr. and Mrs. Weeks had boarded the boat only a short time before the explosion.

Weeks was sitting in the kitchen reading a newspaper when the boiler blast ripped through the craft.

Mrs. Weeks had walked to the end of the kitchen, and the Negro woman was standing by a refrigerator nearby. Both women were blown out of the boat.

Neither Mrs. Weeks nor the cook was in a critical condition.

Two of the victims were identified as Cecil Smith of Greenville, the pilot, and Charlie Anderson, of Greenville.

Three others were identified only as Vick, Mooney and Albert. Jimmy Joyner, manager of the Chicago Mill and Lumber Co., here said the body of another man, unidentified, was found along the riverbank, and an eighth unidentified man also was killed.

Robert Pugh of Greenville, part owner of the Choctaw firm, identified the other victims as: Cecil Smith, Pilot; Charlie Anderson, Dennis Vickery, Albert Barnes, and Frank Mooney all of Greenville.

Weather View Chilly, Cloudy

A cold, cloudy weekend is the forecast for the Monroe-West Monroe section of Northeast Louisiana. The weatherman blew a chilly report down from his observation tower both for Arkansas and Louisiana.

Skies will be cloudy, with occasional rain today in Louisiana and some light rain in the extreme south portion of Arkansas, where the temperatures are expected to climb to the high 30's.

NEW TYPE Of Rocket Tests Near

NEW YORK (AP)—The Pentagon's space director said Friday the United States hopes to test next year a rocket 10 times more powerful than any this country now possesses.

Roy W. Johnson, director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency, also predicted manned space flights using another new combination of rockets. He gave no time scheduled for the manned flights.

Johnson noted that his agency had ordered the Army to develop a cluster of Atlas type engines to provide a basic booster with 1½ million pounds of thrust.

He voiced a hope that this rocket will be ready for flight test in 1960, then said that a three-stage combination using this rocket, an existing Atlas missile as the second stage, and a new third rocket, could place a 25,000-pound manned space station into orbit or could launch a manned vehicle to circumnavigate the moon and return.

Johnson made his predictions in a speech before a meeting of the New York State Bar Assn. The speech was read for Johnson, detained in Washington by the Senate space hearings, by Rear Adm. John E. Clark, ARPA's deputy director.

Johnson indicted an existing Atlas rocket booster and a new high-energy second stage could place a man or men in a satellite orbit and return them to earth.

Police Chief Charges

TORONTO, Ont. (UPI)—A police chief charged Friday that a group of prominent businessmen masterminded a series of Canadian robberies that netted 20 million dollars.

Authorities following the trail of stolen cash, securities and jewelry have made arrests in Canada, the United States and other countries.

Rescue Vessel Fails To Find Any Sign Of Freighter, 95 Aboard

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI)—The Danish freighter Hans Hedtoft struck an iceberg off the southern coast of Greenland on its maiden voyage and reported it was sinking with 95 persons aboard. A rescue ship radioed that it had reached the scene and found no sight of the distressed vessel in 20-foot waves.

The rescue ship, the German trawler Johannes Kreuss, reported that it had searched a large area in which the Hedtoft had said it was going down.

"On the scene," the Kreuss messaged, "Cannot see anything. Poor visibility."

4-Year Draft Extension Is Favored 34-1

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Armed Services Committee gave swift approval Friday to President Eisenhower's request for a four-year extension of the draft.

The committee acted by a 34-1 vote within 40 minutes after completing week-long hearings on the proposal. Rep. Arthur Winstead (D-Miss.) cast the lone "no" vote.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) promptly announced he hoped to bring the extension before the full House for expected approval next week. If the move is successful, the draft extension would be the first major legislation to clear either House in the 86th Congress.

AFFECTS MANY

The vote came after Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy warned in a last-minute letter that the nation's military posture would be "dangerously weakened" if the draft were not continued four years beyond its scheduled expiration date next June 30.

Besides continuing the conscription of young men between 18½ and 26 years old, the bill also would extend the authority to draft doctors and dentists and continue provisions providing aid for dependents.

While the Army has been the only service relying on the draft for manpower, the Navy, Marines and Air Force all testified they could not attract the volunteers they needed unless the draft law remained in the books as a stimulant.

Thor Blasts Off For Full-Range U.S. Space Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The nation's 25th Thor intermediate-range ballistic missile surged up Friday night on the roaring start of another full-range space test.

The powerful Thor — already on operational alert status with NATO forces in England — shot skyward from a cascade of white flame and smoke at 8:33 p.m. The blastoff appeared to run smoothly in contrast with the last snoot Dec. 20 when the 65-foot war rocket blew apart in spectacular style, high in the sky.

The 5½-ton missile knifed through a thick mass of low-hanging clouds. Then the rocket was lost from sight, but the roar of its big engines was heard for two more minutes.

The Thor was blinking as it climbed. Once again it was equipped with a huge light capable of generating 17 million candlepower.

As the Douglas weapon reached spaceward at tremendous speed, huge ballistic-tracking cameras stationed at strategic spots along the coast followed its path.

Businessmen Head 'Crime Syndicate'

CANADA, The FBI said that more than $300,000 worth of stolen Canadian securities has been recovered in the United States.

Young said that the biggest job pulled by the alleged crime syndicate was the 9-million-dollar burglary of the Brockville Trust and Savings Co. last May. It was believed to have been the largest theft in North American history.

Roberts said that if the charges made by Young were true "every man in the Criminal Investigation Bureau will be turned loose" on the case.

Young charged that the businessmen hired "workmen" to carry out the carefully-planned crimes, while keeping themselves in the background.

He described Rene Martin, 23, who was sentenced to 12 years in prison for his part in the Brockville robbery, as a "key man" in connection with bonds stolen in

Officers Arrest Ex-Convict For Birdland Slaying

NEW YORK (AP)—An ex-convict wanted in the knife slaying of the assistant manager of a Broadway jazz palace was picked up by police Friday night.

Lee Schlesinger, 42, was sought in the death of Zachariah (Irving) Levy, 36, assistant manager of Birdland. Levy was stabbed early Monday at the jazz center by a man accompanied by a red-haired woman with a pony-tail hairdo.

The pair escaped in the confusion. Schlesinger's wife, who is red-haired, was picked up with him. Police said neither one made any statement immediately.

Schlesinger, who also goes by the name of Harold Cooperman, already faces charges in the shooting of Dominick Manfro, a former lightweight boxer.

Manfro, of Rye, N.Y., was critically wounded in Manhattan last Sept. 12.

Ship Hits Iceberg, Reported Sinking

The U.S. Coast Guard and the Royal Canadian Air Force said 90 passengers and 40 crewmembers were aboard the Hedtoft. However, the ship's owners in Copenhagen said their passenger list showed 40 crewmembers and 55 passengers, including Argo Lyng, one of the two Greenland representatives to the Danish Folketing (Parliament).

The area in which the ship hit the iceberg was well outside normal shipping lanes. The usual sea lanes said by transatlantic liners are located farther south, outside the icebergs danger area.

In Copenhagen, Denmark, the owners of the ship said it had received reports that its engine room was flooded but that watertight shields were preventing the holds from being submerged.

The 288-foot Hans Hedtoft, operated by the Royal Greenland Trade Department, had a hole gouged in its hull near the engine room. It gave its position as approximately 59.5 degrees north and 43 west.

The ship said weather conditions were poor. Snow was falling, and the Coast Guard said seas were running high, from 18 to 24 feet.

The home's owner, Mrs. Pearl Beard, 52, collapsed in hysteria after her employees forcibly restrained her from going back into the blaze.

Brody said Friday night "We knew this was the worst fire hazard we had in town."

There were no fire hydrants nearby, he said, and fifteen feet to string hose for 2,000 feet to get water to the flames. Although the home had complied with state fire marshals' recommendations three months ago, Brody said, "We've had trouble with this place for a long time."

Assistant State Fire Marshal John McFarland refused to speculate on the cause of the fire. However, Mrs. Beard blamed it on the wiring. She said she had paid $80 for repair on the second floor wiring system only Thursday.

Heavy wooden trim inside the house provided perfect fuel for the blaze and the flames reached inferno proportions within minutes.

An orderly, Frank Mack, 30, smelled smoke in the first floor living room, heard nurse Rosie Lee Haley scream: "Fire! Help! Help!" from the second floor, and turned in the fire alarm.

He and other nursing home employees tried desperately, and in many cases futilely, to get out the old folks on the second floor.

Mack managed to reach the second floor and tried to help an old man lying on the floor.

"Debris was lying all about him," Mack said. "I doused him with a fire extinguisher but I couldn't help him."

By the time firemen arrived there was little they could do, even though they entered the blazing building with their faces shrouded in gas masks.

Sheriff Otterpohl said flames were shooting 30 to 40 feet above the roof when he arrived and two nurses were trying desper-

Rubert, true to his convictions against conventional medical treatments, replied "No—no doctors."

However, police took the practitioner to St. Luke's Hospital, where the bullets were removed. He was in serious, but improving, condition Friday.

Whitney meanwhile, walked down eight floors to the street, went to the nearest streetcorner, and handed his pistol to policeman John Riemann.

"I shot him and I intended to kill him," he said. "I did it because he killed my daughter."

At police headquarters, Whitney told how he had been a widower in 1937 when Rubert and two other Christian Science practitioners attended his daughter in Chicago. The girl, a diabetic, died. Whitney was convinced it was because the Christian Scientists denied her insulin.

"How many times did I hit him?" Whitney asked police.

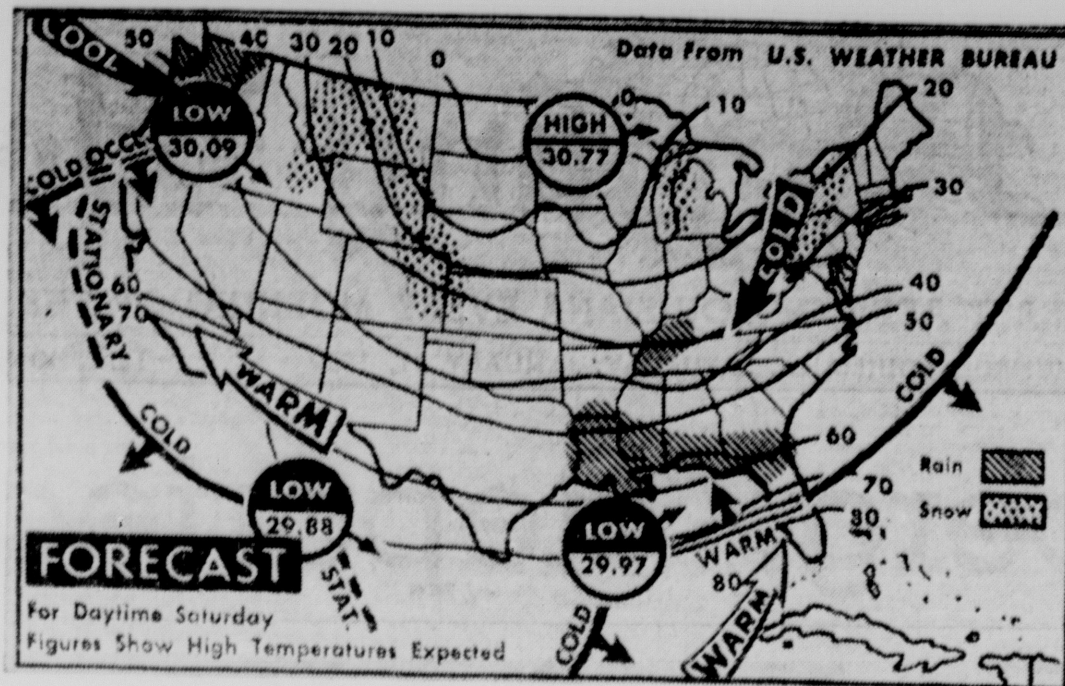

"Three times," they told him.

"That's pretty good for a guy that knows nothing about guns," Whitney said.

ately to get patients out of the first floor.

Bedridden victims were carried out and other old patients were brought out in chairs. Many of them were screaming or in shock.

Records at the Public Health Department in Springfield showed the building was renovated four years ago. A state fire marshal's inspection in 1957 said the building met minimum state fire regulations.

WEATHER FORECAST—Widely scattered snow flurries are forecast Saturday for Great Lakes and central Appalachian areas. There is a chance for some snow or sleet in part of Ohio Valley. Rain is likely along Gulf Coast and some light snow or snow flurries are expected in Montana and along eastern slopes of the Rockies. Showers of snow or rain depending upon local elevations are scheduled for Pacific northwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Senators Are Told Of U.S. Space Lag

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), a critic of the Eisenhower defense program, asked at what point the United States would be in a "hopeless" position if the present U.S. program was continued. Von Braun replied some time "within the next decade."

Von Braun coupled his warning with a plea for more money to speed U.S. space developments.

The outspoken rocketeer asked for an additional $140,000,000 alone to speed construction of a cluster of Jupiter rockets. They would be used to hurl a militarily valuable communications satellite into orbit or to send tons of equipment deep into space.

The cluster would have one and a half million pounds of thrust. But according to committee testimony it would not be ready for three years under present planning.

After hearing Von Braun the committee closed its two-day hearings.

However, the House Space Committee announced it would open a four-day inquiry Monday into the space program with testimony from Glennan, Von Braun and other civilian and military officials.

Throughout his testimony, Von Braun called for more speed along the space line.

"If the Russians stopped making progress right now, we might catch up with them in about a year," he said. "But there is no evidence that they are stopping."

"The question is whether we have caught up with their working speed. I would say that a year ago they were still pulling ahead. Perhaps the gap may be stationary now."

Von Braun agreed with Glennan and two of Glennan's aides—Drs. Homer Stewart and W. H. Pickering—that there was nothing phony about Russia's claims that its "Lunik" rocket had shot past the moon and is now orbiting the sun.

He also agreed with Stewart, planning director for the civilian space agency, that the Lunik shot showed the Russians have developed a rocket guidance system that could direct a hydrogen missile to its target.

Von Braun said the missile could be sent crashing down on a city. Stewart testified the guidance mechanism could pilot the missile to within 15 or 20 miles of the desired target.

Von Braun said the United States had confirmed that the 3,000-pound Russian "Lunik" passed the moon about where the Russians said it would, but an hour earlier than predicted.

Asked for the military significance of the achievement, Von Braun said it "proves again" that the Soviets have more powerful rockets, that the Lunik apparently had a little more power than they thought, and that the guidance was very accurate.

Von Braun testified he needs an additional $140,000,000 — $40,000,000 this year and another $100,000,000 in 1960—to build a cluster of Jupiter rockets that are scheduled to pack 1,500,000 pounds of thrust. They may be tested in two years.

He said the cluster has great military significance in connection with the creation of a communications satellite. It was the military aspects, he said, that won administration approval of the project.

Glennan testified that the rocket cluster would make it possible by 1962 to put 10 tons of payload into orbit and to send two tons "far beyond the moon."

Von Braun appeared alone before the subcommittee shortly after he heard joint testimony from Roy W. Johnson, head of the Pentagon space agency; Dr. Herbert F. York, Defense Department research director; and William Holladay, guided missile director.

Before Glennan opened the space testimony, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, (D-Tex.) said the committee—which Thursday looked into the U.S. military missile program—wanted to know when the United States would "catch up" with Russia in space.

Wreck Scene Clearing Is Near Finish

Rail officials estimated last night that most of the wreckage strewn along the Missouri Pacific's lines south of Monroe when a freight derailed a week ago would be removed today.

Work is expected to begin at noon to neutralize 80,000 gallons of caustic soda spilled when 33 cars of the freight jumped the track, Thursday, Jan. 22.

Meanwhile St. Francis Hospital announced three of the 32 men burned when a tanker exploded a week ago last night were released. The hospital said they were firemen W. A. Carr, 215 Bell Ave., Monroe, and Everett Baile, 1609 S. 6th., Monroe. The other release was J. T. Steven, Dermott, Ark.

The death toll stood at seven and six remain in critical condition. Twenty-three men are still hospitalized.

C. A. Prince, sales engineer for the Dowell division of the Dow Chemical Company, said last night 30,000 gallons of hydrochloric acid will be poured on the soda to disarm it.

He said the process would probably take about three or four days.

However Prince said that traffic will be allowed to move along the highway, since the process will produce nothing more than an uncomfortable odor. He said the chemical reaction would be controlled and kept at a slow pace.

D. T. Barksdale, division superintendent for the railroad, estimated that most of the wrecked cars should be removed by late today.

Barksdale said that the rain would not hamper operations too much, but that he planned to finish the big work so that crews could take Sunday off.

Damage estimates are still being computed, Barksdale said, and would probably be available late next week.

JES' Ramblin' Building

With the end of January work toward the erection of the fine new Y.M.C.A. for the Twin Cities is continuing with unusual activity. It is anticipated, states G. L. Morgan, building committee chairman, that the first units of the $300,000 building will be under erection not later than next June 1.

The building's location is such as to suit its requirements being on Glenmar street with frontage of 400 feet. This location is central to the growing population on the north side of Monroe and can be reached easily from the Twin Cities.

On the building committee are, besides chairman Morgan, John Sherrouse Jr., Shelby Hill, Jim Adcock and Vernon McCoy. H. H. Land and Son have been selected as architects of the new building.

Ailing Green Gives Up Key Senate Post

(Continued From Page One) Committee he must step down as chairman of the Banking Committee. This would leave Sen. A. Willis Robertson (D-Va.) in line to head that group.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles joined senators in expressing regret at Green's decision and lauding his service to the country. Dulles said he was pleased that Green would remain as a committee member so "we will continue to have the benefit of his wise counsel."

Green said in his letter to Johnson that it was not loss of physical stamina that prompted his decision, but his recent eye trouble and the longer-standing loss of hearing.

Johnson attended the dramatic meeting in the committee's ornate suite in the Capitol. There had been a movement to relocate the committee in the ultra-modern new Senate Office Building, but Green refused to permit a change from the historic old quarters.

Only Green smiled as newsmen rushed in after the 90-minute meeting to question him and Johnson.

A newsmen asked Green if he would leave the Senate. He replied by repeating his previously stated ambition to represent Rhode Island "until I'm 100."

Johnson, speaking for the committee, said "the people of Rhode Island and the United States are fortunate to have had such a great man and patriot and such a noble character in the Senate."

The Democratic Leader said Green had talked to him about resigning as chairman as long ago as last August, and that the Rhode Islander informed him of his decision Thursday.

Green, a wealthy bachelor who did not come to the Senate until he was 69, denied in his letter that he stepped down because of what he called "misleading newspaper stories" or "slanted editorials" by "callous" newsmen.

That was an obvious reference to an editorial printed Thursday in Green's hometown newspaper, the Providence Journal, urging him to retire.

The Journal said: "He is now 91 years old. The committee over which he presides, in a heavily Democratic Congress confronting a weary Republican administration, has been placed in a position of exceptional power and responsibility... Reports from Washington increasingly suggest that Sen. Green no longer has the physical capacity, the mental vigor or the depth of insight to discharge his duties as the national interest demands."

Robins

Peggy Garnett, recreation instructor and ever one who loves the great outdoors world, the woods, the trees, the flowers and also the many differently "costumed" birds of the air, yesterday halted us in front of a DeSiard dime store to give a page in outdoor feathered life.

She took exception to this column's remark that the robins at this time of the year are arriving in the "Deep South." "Why," she declared, "The robins are here 12 months in the year! They are a different variety than those of up-north. Those robins are larger and probably more attractive than we have in the south, was her explanation, but she added, "Never think or say that we have robins only here in season. The season here is 12 months of the year!" We apologize.

Stocking

Stocking, stocking - who owns the stocking? This is what pedestrians at Third and DeSiard street said as they viewed for many hours a delicate little stocking such as only a woman would wear. It lay right in the path where feet of men, women and children passed.

Those passing in many cases stopped to view and to wonder to whom it belonged and why was it thrown out where it would meet so many eyes?

Fire Destroys Madison Area Cafe Building

DELHI (Special) —Fire demolished an unoccupied cafe building a mile east of here on old U.S. Highway 80 in Madison Parish early last night and destroyed its complete furnishings.

The blaze was discovered about 6:45 p.m. by men in a nearby establishment but when the Delhi firemen arrived minutes later the flames had already jumped out of control.

Ted O'Neal, owner, said that the building was not insured.

Damage estimates ran into several thousand dollars.

Earl Allen, postal employee, owned the equipment.

Cause of the fire had not been determined last night.

The cameras record the missile's space trip with pinpoint accuracy. The launching was another 1,700 statute mile full-range shot. Thor was designed for this distance but it once traveled as far as 2,600 miles on an earlier test.

The Air Force is working on a number of projects in connection with Thor. The foremost is to improve its reliability—that is, its capability of hitting the bulls-eye every time.

The first of a future arsenal of Thors now is poised for action at a security-wrapped launching site within range of Moscow.

The missile will be handled by Royal Air Force crewmen but the all-important nuclear warhead will remain in U.S. possession at the site.

In addition to its potential as an awesome war weapon, Thor is playing a key role in U.S. space ventures.

SENT TO JAIL

WARSAW (UPI)—A court Thursday night imposed sentences ranging from 10 months to 14 years on 14 members of the German People's Freedom Party on charges they were plotting to return the Oder-Neisse territories to Germany. The Oder-Neisse territories were taken from Germany after World War II and placed under Polish administration. The government charged the organization planned subversive activity in case of war and sought to contact West German intelligence agencies.

Cost of reconstruction of the U.S. Capitol now underway in Washington, D. C. will be about 10 million dollars.

STRICT COURT Sanity Hearing Held For Youth

An 18-year-old Swartz youth, charged with the attempted murder of his grandmother, yesterday appeared in Fourth District Court and was ordered to the East Louisiana State hospital at Jackson, for a mental examination.

The sanity hearing took place before Judge Jesse Heard, who ordered that the examination be given Claude Ray Mason. He was arrested on charges of attempting to murder Mrs. Elsie Mason.

Isiah Lee Banks, Negro, appeared in court to have a change made in his defense. J. Lee Thompson was relieved of duties as Banks' lawyer, and J. Norman Coon was appointed to assist attorney George Fink, in the case. Banks, who recently underwent a mental examination, is charged with the Aug. 2, 1958 pistol slaying of James Dale Andrews, Negro.

Date for his arraignment was scheduled yesterday for Feb. 13. In other action, Judge Heard ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Sammy Lee Gray, who was remanded after he admitted three counts of forgery of endorsemments and one charge of simple burglary.

Dogle Crosswell, 18, Donald Ray, 19, Charles Hayman, 18, Doyle West, 18, and Leland Pierce, 19, all of Bastrop, were tried and found guilty of aggravated assault. They were charged with an incident on Nov. 28, 1958, when a shotgun blast was fired into a building at Oliver's Boat Dock on Black Bayou. They were remanded on bond, and will be sentenced on Feb. 27, following a

Youth Held As Suspect In Robbery

Police booked a young Negro on suspicion of armed robbery at 8:45 last night after a Negro city sanitation department worker said he was robbed at gunpoint as he walked down Washington Street near the intersection of 11th Street shortly before.

Amos Clay, 49, of 119 Powell's Alley, said the gunman stepped from behind a utility pole, rammed a pistol in his ribs, and took over $60 from his left front pocket.

Clay said that he was then ordered to keep walking. He said he looked over his shoulder and that the gunman did not run.

QUESTIONED

George Fields Jr., 18, of 601 Jack McHenry, was questioned and then jailed under suspicion of armed robbery. Police said he would be questioned further.

They said that Clay identified Fields as the man who robbed him but explained that there was more investigation to follow.

Clay said he had been paid at the end of work yesterday, and had been to town.

Fields was arrested at 1003 Washington St., minutes after Clay reported he had been robbed. Fields was arrested after Clay furnished a description of his alleged robber.

Police said Fields had only a knife, wallet, and 70 cents when he was arrested.

BRIGHTON, England (UPI)—A 31-year-old Brighton woman said Friday she gave birth to an eight-pound baby without pain after putting herself under hypnosis. Mrs. Pamela Brandson, 31-year-old wife of a salesman, described the self-hypnosis birth as "thrilling." She said she was conscious throughout.

"I just put myself in a hypnotic state, told myself I could feel no pain... and that was that," she said.

Russia Gets New Nuclear Ban Proposal

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States and Britain Friday offered Russia a detailed plan for the control of all nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes by an international "watchdog" commission that would guarantee that no nation could use them for weapons tests.

The proposal was submitted at the three-power nuclear conference in the form of a draft treaty article by U.S. delegation chief James J. Walsworth. It had full support of the British.

It proposed that all peaceful nuclear explosions would have to be approved in advance by the seven nation control commission expected to police a nuclear weapons test ban.

The United States, Britain and Russia would be permanent members of the commission. Four other nations would be elected for two-year terms by a conference of all nations party to a test ban.

Arlington Files Appeal For Stay On Integration

WASHINGTON (AP)—Counsel for the school board at Arlington, Va., filed a petition Friday in the U.S. Supreme Court asking Chief Justice Warren to order a delay in admission of four Negroes to Stratford Junior High School.

The Negroes expect to enter the school Monday, after refusal by Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday to grant a delay.

The board attorney, Frank L. Ball, was told by court officials that Warren wished him to file the written list of grounds for issuance of a stay.

The chief justice also said he wished to have a reply from counsel for the four Negro pupils. He promised prompt action.

The United States wants to leave the door open in any test ban agreement for its "atoms for peace" program. U.S. scientists believe such explosions could be used to tap hitherto unattainable underground oil and water resources and to blast out new harbors.

Chief Soviet negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin agreed to study the U.S. proposal, but echoed his government's view that peaceful nuclear explosions must be strictly limited.

Stennis Proposed

If the move to appoint Senator John Stennis of Mississippi to the Supreme Court materializes, it may mean a turning away from the high court's tendency to become a law-making body.

The reason for the talk of his appointment is the possible retirement of Justice Felix Frankfurter who will reach the age of 77 this year. The placing of a southerner who has spared no criticism of the "Warren Court" on the bench would require courage on the part of President Eisenhower.

In fact, it is doubtful that he would have given the matter much consideration prior to the 1956 campaign. Now the President — knowing he will leave the White House in 1961 — is more nearly free to make decisions without regard to party politics. This is more in accord with President Eisenhower's ideal of a balanced organization which helped him on many an occasion when he headed Allied Armies in Europe. It would be in accord with the President's own thinking to appoint just such a man as Senator Stennis to the Supreme Court bench.

The strongest objections would come from the idea that the machinery of government is more important than the people who run it or who are served by it.

Holmes Alexander, whose editorial comments appear on this page several times weekly, tested reactions of various "liberal" congressmen on the matter of Stennis' possible appointment. Most interesting was the remark of Representative Adam Clayton Powell, a Negro of the Harlem district of New York, who said:

"Leaving personalities entirely aside, I don't think any man who has been critical of the Supreme Court should be considered for it or should accept appointment."

This is strange thinking and a new shading on the American political scene. Suppose the salty critic of the Eisenhower administration, ex - President Truman, would help push a Democrat candidate to victory in some future presidency election. Would he advise his winner to refuse the office of President of the United States because he had waged a campaign of the criticism against that office and how it was managed? Hardly.

Curious also was the reaction of Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois:

"Don't ask me. Don't press me. There is no finer person in the senate than John Stennis. He is a noble man with a high sense of justice. If I were ever on trial, I would find him philosophically acceptable — don't ask me. At this moment I am not prepared to answer."

The words "philosophically acceptable" ring the same sort of alien mumbo-jumbo as Rep. Powell's influence that Sen. Stennis has no right to criticize an institution of the U.S. Government then take a position within it.

What has happened to the American tradition of representative government? By the liberals' standards, must the top positions in the federal government be filled with persons of similar philosophies? If so, the trend of the "hungry '30's" which bred some of the world's most power-mad dictators is still with us.

Far from the "Klaghorn" type of southern senator, John Stennis is an established legal scholar who was three times elected circuit judge without opposition. Unlike many of the more modern-minded members of both political parties, he believes the history of our own nation can serve as a good basis for current high-level decisions.

Too many of today's officials have sought advice from foreign sociological writers when the answer lay in the amendments to the Constitution.

The appointment of Senator John Stennis to the Supreme Court would be a timely move, good for the nation as a whole.

Filled Woodshed

Commenting on the difference between old-fashioned and modern fuels, the St. Louis, Mo., Globe Democrat said:

"There is something about a well-filled woodshed that means peace of mind. It requires plenty of fuel to keep fires going in the kitchen range and in the nickel-trimmed base burner.

It is good to see tiers of solid maple, oak, ash and hickory. It is heartening to see a big pile of knotty chunks for the parlor stove — chunks that will burn slowly during a zero night and leave a bed of glowing coals to start the morning fire quickly. It is good to know that there is a generous pile of dry kindling.

When a man comes in from the chores these evenings, he stops with lantern and milkpail on his arm, and lets the light of the lantern play over the woodshed fuel. Modern fuel is easily obtained but it doesn't have the meaning of a woodshed that is filled with fuel a man has harvested from his woodlot."

Those are beautiful and nostalgic words. They remind a man of his boyhood if he is old enough to remember woodsheds, where the "old man" was also handy with another kind of sticks—the kind applied to boys who didn't do as they were told. Those sticks—both kinds—bring wonderful memories, some happy, some not.

Wood that burns all night and leaves glowing coals in the morning is wonderful. So is gas that burns all night and is still burning in the morning. And the gas doesn't have to be toted in.

Now a man can still get the exhilarating feeling of accomplishment that cutting wood brought to him. Since he doesn't have to cut wood he can turn to other things—maybe bigger things. There's still good, honest work to be done, if a man will do it.

Lurid Hoax Bared

One of the most lurid hoaxes to come to light in many a moon was revealed when a Dallas, Tex. service station attendant admitted his story of finding $2,408,000 worth of gold bars was untrue, following a lie detector test.

After the admission, D. E. Jones, the attendant said: "The only gold I have is what's in my teeth. It cost $450 when the dentist put it in but I've been losing teeth lately."

As a matter of fact, gold in his teeth is about the only kind of gold the man can possess legally, except for certain items of jewelry. A man who finds gold these days or who says he has found gold is in for trouble. Either way, he's in a jam with the federal government and he would be better off if he left the gold unfound.

Two reasons it's unlucky to find

gold are that the federal government lays claim to buried treasure that is discovered and can place criminal charges against anyone for possessing gold. Under the setup, if any man finds gold he not only has to surrender it to the government but has to do it fast or he may be charged with illegal possession.

The government's claim of treasure discovered by an individual is inconsistent with our form of government. It conforms to the system in the dictator countries, where everything is claimed by the state. It might be as fair to tax man on his find as it is to assess an income tax but the government certainly has no more inherent right to unclaimed property than does the individual.

'I Can Lick Anybody In The House!'

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Great Reporters Asked No Special Immunities

The great editors and reporters of this country asked for no immunities and no protections. They took their chances and assumed their responsibilities. I am writing of such reporters as Lincoln Steffens, Charles Edward Russell, Samuel Blythe, Floyd Gibbons, Frank Ward O'Malley, H. L. Mencken, Mark Sullivan, and such publishers as William Randolph Hearst, Joseph Pulitzer, William Allen White, Joseph Medill Patterson—their number is legion in the story of freedom in the United States. These are just names that come to mind, but a little research would fill this column three or four times over with heroic publishers and editors and reporters, long before there was any such thing as a Pulitzer Prize or any other gold stars for good conduct. There was no fear among these men and women. And they wanted no immunity from the law. Journalism was a great art and profession in those days and one that paid badly.

Nowadays news is also handled as a part of theatrical business and the manner and tone are different. Television and radio are not newspapers and few men with real newspaper experience have made brilliant careers on these devices, although Hans Kaltenborn, a brilliant reporter and editor, was undoubtedly the greatest reporter on radio.

Edward R. Murrow, who recently attained a new fame as an export on vice and its relationship to business has never been a newspaperman. Whatever relationship he has had to news has been with radio and television and as that is show business rather than journalism, his discipline and training have been different from that of a reporter. Also, as all his work is ephemeral, passing swiftly into the air, he never had the sad experience of having his errors blue-penciled the next morning from the managing editor that there was no shortage of applicants for jobs.

In fact, Murrow's career started with Professor Stephen P. Duggan's Institute of International Education, an endowed agency for the exchange of students. Murrow left the institute to join the Columbia Broadcasting System as director of talks and education and from that he moved into news.

It is not important that Ed Murrow chooses to be regarded as an expert news gatherer. The fact is that he is not a newspaperman and cannot be recognized as one. From any standpoint he is an actor, a profession to which some fine people admit that they belong. The theater is great art, but playacting is not journalism.

Although it has recently become fashionable for some younger newspapermen to ask for immunity from responsibility, it is not customary in this trade. A newspaper is a responsible business, subject to law. It can be sued for libel; it can be punished for being malicious or malicious. Libel, in very simple language, means lying or defaming and decent newspapermen avoid both. They check their material and their sources and although bias and errors do creep in, the writer does not dodge responsibility. However, when a topnotch reporter, such as Westbrook Pegler, discovers a crook, a swindler, a faker, he will go after him. Sometimes such reporting leads to libel suits, the judge and jury taking another view of the matter, but among strong men the libel suit was ignored as contemptible, if the reporter told the truth. However, today's juries grant such ridiculous sums for what they call libels that newspaper owners are frightened and the reporters fear too.

As regards radio and television, the whole matter is complicated by the method of organizing the job. As it is a theatrical performance, the man who speaks the words may not have written them. The words usually come from a word factory. If the show is owned by the broadcasting company, there may be some responsibility; if it is owned by an agency or a producing company, the direct responsibility may be very remote. The fellow who wrote the words may not have gathered the facts. Murrow, for instance, in his vice show, has admitted that he neither gathered the facts nor wrote the words; he was the narrator, like Charles Laughton reading the Bible parts of which were written several thousand years ago.

Before radio and television are entitled to immunity from the law they need to learn something about responsibility under the law.

Daily Devotion

Praise the Lord; for the Lord is good; sing praise unto His name; for it is pleasant. —Psalm 135:3.

There is one way everyone can praise the Lord — and that is by attending religious services. The Psalmist realized the spiritual and soul stimulating value of praise and worship. Singing, prayer, meditation and worship are pleasant and helpful if indulged in the right spirit. And it is almost a certainty that habitual religious service attendance will create the right spirit in almost any human heart, and that soon we can say with the Psalmist, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord."

Merciful God, create within us a right spirit and clean hearts that we may enjoy regular worship. In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

SYLVIA PORTER

Businessmen See Big Income Jump

Since President Eisenhower submitted his new budget — precariously balanced at $77 billion outgo — $77.1 billion income — I've queried some of the most responsible, respected business and financial leaders in the country on how realistic his projections are. In one profoundly important way the answers have been shockers.

Not the least bit startling has been the fact that I've found not one authoritative source who believes spending in the year beginning this July will be as low as the $77 billion the President proposes.

Rather, the shocker has been that I've found plenty who think income in these months will rise impressively above $77 billion — which in plain words means these experts anticipate a business upswing far stronger than the President forecasts.

And from these same men also comes the private prediction that business may be so excellent that the taxes pouring into the Treasury as a result actually could bring the budget into near balance even at much higher spending totals.

Do not underestimate the potential importance of this story to you — for if the forecasts I'm reporting here for the first time are close to accurate, just about every businessman and millions of American families will feel the happy impact. Specifically, a prediction that even the President's optimistic projections on the tax take in 1959-60 will be topped implies:

(1) A year of strong and sustained business advance to spectacular new peaks, with the critical auto industry chalking up much higher sales than in 1958 and with the basic housing industry also enjoying fine sales;

(2) A year in which America's corporations will show dazzling, record — smashing gains in profits on which they'll pay record-smashing taxes;

(3) A year in which personal incomes will climb persistently too, so individuals will pay fatter taxes on their larger paychecks, larger dividends and larger interest receipts;

(4) A year in which the bigger-than-estimated rise in Federal spending will be matched by a bigger-than-estimated rise in Federal income so the Treasury gradually will be able to pull itself out of its sea of red ink and be able to stop putting out new I. O. U.'s to cover the deficit;

(5) A year, therefore, in which a significant inflation force — a huge Government deficit — will lose much of its power;

(6) And finally, a year in which high joblessness in major industrial centers will continue to be a deeply disturbing problem, for the simple reason that the increasing efficiency of many corporations will permit them to turn out and sell more goods without hiring many more workers.

The key to the accuracy of the forecast on the Government's income in 1959-60 lies in the judgment of how big corporation profits will be.

The President's projection is based on an estimate that corporations in the 12 months beginning July 1959 will ring up $47-$48 billion of profits, an immense rise over their profits of about $36-$37 billion in 1958.

But, here are three exact quotes from men whose opinions, I repeat, are held in highest respect by the nation over:

"We figure that by this fall-winter, profits will be running at a $50 billion annual rate. What people are overlooking is the extent to which corporations were able to reduce their costs and increase their efficiency in the recession. With sales climbing and efficiency so much greater, corporation profits will jump a lot faster than most people expect."

"The President's estimates project a much too modest expansion, the most sluggish advance at this stage of a business revival in 40 years. This is not a logical view. We expect a much faster rise."

"Business will start increasing its spending soon, and when this happens the whole picture will brighten. The income estimate is conservative."

Since the new budget is for a year that won't be over until 17 months from now, about the only certainty is that the figures in the headlines in July 1960 won't be the same as the figures in the headlines in January 1959. Let's hope that the corrections are along the lines indicated above — for, boiled down, what this would mean is that the vast majority of Americans are on the threshold of the best financial period of their lives.

Bills That Will Die Fortunate

WASHINGTON, D. C. — G. L. Gladside, the eternal optimist, was whistling as way through the corridors of the Capitol. What was there to be so happy about?

"Oh, it's wonderful," said Gladside. "Thousands of bills have already been submitted in the 86th congress. But only a very small percentage of these will pass."

That good?

"It's marvelous," said Gladside, who sees the glad side of everything. "For instance, I have just been reading S. 535 by Senator George Aiken of Vermont. It's the same food allotment bill which he's been offering since 1943. I realize that the country's been through two wars and a couple of recessions since then, but what if such things as the Aiken bill had passed?"

As bad as that?

"Well, this bill calls for food coupons in denominations of caloric value, to be issued to families on the basis of their purchasing power. It's hard to say how many people would get more to eat, but it would take thousands of bureaucrats to administer such a law. It would also have the effect of totally subsidizing the American farmer and virtually putting him under civil service. But — oh, boy! oh, joy — it'll never pass."

Anything else to be happy about?

"I should say so," said Gladside. "With all those freshmen congressional members, along with a new state, this could be the most unworkable and unproductive congress in years. Think what a national blessing that would mean! Less government; better government. I'm just dancing on air."

But, Mr. Gladside, the prediction is that all the bypassed and vetoed legislation of last year will now be hustled through by the triumphant Democrats.

"I refuse to be downcast," said Gladside. "It's true that much legislation is waiting in the wings, but a lot of it is competitive and could produce a deadlock."

Like the Jack Kennedy vs. Barry Goldwater bills on labor? And the Lyndon Johnson vs. Eisenhower administration program for civil rights?

"They could easily cancel each other out," chuckled Gladside. "After all, the country never suffered from any law that wasn't passed. There never was a problem in human relations — such as racial — labor — management affairs — that was settled by legislation. So I'm happy as the day is long over the thought that this biggest congress could be the biggest bust."

Well, if a man believes that no legislation is good legislation, this 86th congress is unwieldy in another way — presidential possibilities. The senate had Johnson, Symington, Humphrey and Kennedy, while the house had Charles Halleck.

"Oh, I am simply delighted over the thought that these men will blockade one another to a standstill," said Gladside. "But that isn't all of it. The visit of Mikoyan created a whole flock of self-appointed candidates for secretary of state — Eric Johnston, Henry Ford, Cyrus Eaton and others. This also is a year when we even have a freshman member of the house, Chester Bowles, who thinks he is a better foreign minister than anybody else. Frankly, I look for so much congressional stalemate that ordinary people will have a greater say in their government than ever before. That's the whole idea of democratic rule, is it not?"

Well, yes, but... For example?

"Well," said Gladside as he beamed happily upon life, "the general public sided with Senator Symington in rebuking the vice president for his Pollyanna statements about our missile strength. It is also pretty clear that businessmen agree with Senator Johnson when he called the president's fiscal estimates a "propaganda budget." And there's no doubt whatever that the press and the public completely reversed the government and big business in their opinions on Mikoyan. The people do manage to be heard."

So, the best thing about official leadership is that it often fails to lead us into trouble. Is that it?

"I find a lot of comfort in those thoughts," agreed G. L. Gladside, the happiest man in town.

License Plates Sales Tempo Gains

Monroe - West Monroe area residents have until next Friday, Feb. 6, to purchase their 1959 automobile license plates. After that, a $1 penalty will be added to the regular $3 purchase price.

C. R. Tidwell, manager of the Fifth District Office of the State Revenue Department, estimated yesterday that approximately two-thirds of the area motorists have already purchased their tags.

"This was our heaviest week so far - but it's running about average, since a large number of the motorists usually wait until the last two weeks to purchase their license plates," he explained.

The motor vehicle section office in the Henninger Building, 138 S. Grand St., will remain open from 8-5 (its regular hours) Monday through Friday of next week.

SUB-STATIONS
Tags also will be sold at a sub-station located in the Claiborne Street fire station in West Monroe, and in sub-stations in each of the district's parishes.

The West Monroe location opened on Jan. 19. Plates were placed on sale in the Monroe office on Dec. 1, and have only one change from 1958 tags - the background is navy blue.

Truck license plates, on sale since Jan. 1, will continue to be sold without penalty until May 1, deadline for truck tag purchase.

4 Brothers File Suit For Damage In Parish Court

Four Arkansas brothers filed lawsuits with the Ouachita parish clerk of court yesterday, for damages totalling $12,051.25 for injuries and property loss they said was suffered in a rear-end collision at U.S. Highway 165, on March 2, 1958.

D. W. Smith, R. Lee Smith, Mike Smith and William Joseph Smith, all of Chicot County, are suing Derwood Lane Hollis of Ouachita Parish and the Insurance Company of the State of Pennsylvania.

D. W. Smith charges that he was driving a pickup truck north 1.8 miles north of Monroe, at 3:30 a.m., when Hollis' auto slammed into the back of the truck, causing it to turn over several times.

CHARGES
He charges that Hollis was negligent and left the scene without offering aid. The men were taken to St. Francis Hospital for treatment.

All four men state they suffered injuries to muscles, ligaments, nerves tissues and bones, and each was unable to return to work for several weeks.

In addition, D. W. Smith points out he received fractures of four ribs, Mike Smith states he received contusions and a sprain to the cervical spine, R. Lee Smith explains he received spinal injuries and lost $164.75 worth of household goods loaded in the back of the truck, and William Joseph Smith mentions he suffered contusions and abrasions.

Youths Charged In Burglary Of Mangham Cafe

MANGHAM (Special) - Six area youths were held under charges of theft in Winnsboro this week following a raid on a local cafe. Four were arrested and charged with theft and two were turned over to Franklin parish juvenile authorities.

Charged with simple burglary were Donnie Russell, 19; James Singer, 18; L. C. Roberts, 19, and Charles Veulman, 20, and the two juveniles.

The theft was discovered by Arlon Hutson, Mangham night marshal, who saw the car parked back of the bar at 12:45 a.m. Saturday. The car pulled away and Hutson got the license number.

He tried to catch the automobile, but failed. Members of the Richland parish sheriff's department were called in and Franklin authorities were also asked to assist in the investigation, as the car went into Franklin parish when leaving the scene of the burglary.

Six cases of beer were recovered in an empty house west of Winnsboro by investigating authorities. Four young men were also apprehended at about 4 a.m. Saturday and the other two were picked up later that morning.

Sentence Given In Area Burglary

WINNSBORO (Special) - In Fifth District Court at Winnsboro yesterday, Willie Scott, 19, Negro, of Winnsboro Star route, pleaded guilty to three charges of simple burglary.

Judge Harry N. Anders sentenced him to 15 years hard labor at the state penitentiary at Angola. He was given five years on each charge, not to run concurrently.

He said he had entered J. C. Bue commissary near Fort Necessity Dec. 28 and took two $50 bills, and the Wayne Lishman Store at Fort Necessity on the same day where he took $29 in cash, a rifle and a hunting license, and the Louis Woodridge home near Fort Necessity on Jan. 11. The loot from the home included a radio, rifle and bicycle.

Suit

A Ouachita Parish man who charges he suffered a hernia and was disabled when thrown from a truck on Oct. 14, 1958, is suing the Employers Liability Assurance Corp. Ltd. for $11,960.00 in compensation.

Hugh Sherman charges that, as he was riding in the back of a truck owned by his employer, Central Construction Co., steel forms extending out of the vehicle struck a roadside sign, and were pulled out, carrying him along and falling on him.

The suit contends that the insurance company paid him compensation until Dec. 21, then halted it although he is unable to work.

Building Permits Week's Total 14

Fourteen building permits were issued for construction totalling $85,545 during the past week by William C. Hines, Monroe building inspector.

"This has been quite a week," noted Hines. He pointed out that John E. Zufall, chief inspector now undergoing treatment in the Veterans' Hospital in Alexandria, normally does a vast amount of paper work, now being tackled by the rest of the inspection personnel.

"It was hard this week. I hate to think of what it will be when the construction really gets under way within a few weeks," he pointed out.

Largest permit issued during the week went to F. Strauss and Sons, for construction of a new Diddy Dandy grocery store at 301 Plum St.

Small Envelopes To Be Excluded From The Mails

Posters distributed throughout the Monroe Post Office yesterday announced that as of July 1, no envelopes smaller than 2 and 3/4 inches by 4 inches will be accepted for mailing.

The Postal Department has pointed out that smaller envelopes will not work in the cancelling machines, and cause extra work for mail clerks.

Primarily, small announcements and invitations will be affected by the new requirements.

Monroe Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn, when questioned on the matter earlier this week, commented that the ruling might be changed before it goes into effect.

had been saving for her daughter. The woman proceeded to wrap all the money up in a piece of paper, blessed it, and placed it on the mantle.

She told Mr. and Mrs. McCoy not to unwrap the money for two weeks, or the "blessing" would not work.

But Mrs. McCoy became curious about half an hour after the couple had left and sneaked a look in the paper.

No money. The Franklin Parish Sheriff's department has placed a detainer on the pair apprehended at Idabel, Okla., until identification can be made.

Stennis Proposed

If the move to appoint Senator John Stennis of Mississippi to the Supreme Court materializes, it may mean a turning away from the high court's tendency to become a law-making body.

The reason for the talk of his appointment is the possible retirement of Justice Felix Frankfurter who will reach the age of 77 this year. The placing of a southerner who has spared no criticism of the "Warren Court" on the bench would require courage on the part of President Eisenhower.

In fact, it is doubtful that he would have given the matter much consideration prior to the 1956 campaign. Now the President — knowing he will leave the White House in 1961 — is more nearly free to make decisions without regard to party politics. This is more in accord with President Eisenhower's ideal of a balanced organization which helped him on many an occasion when he headed Allied Armies in Europe. It would be in accord with the President's own thinking to appoint just such a man as Senator Stennis to the Supreme Court bench.

The strongest objections would come from the idea that the machinery of government is more important than the people who run it or who are served by it.

Holmes Alexander, whose editorial comments appear on this page several times weekly, tested reactions of various "liberal" congressmen on the matter of Stennis' possible appointment. Most interesting was the remark of Representative Adam Clayton Powell, a Negro of the Harlem district of New York, who said:

"Leaving personalities entirely aside, I don't think any man who has been critical of the Supreme Court should be considered for it or should accept appointment."

This is strange thinking and a new shading on the American political scene. Suppose the salty critic of the Eisenhower administration, ex - President Truman, would help push a Democrat candidate to victory in some future presidency election. Would he advise his winner to refuse the office of President of the United States because he had waged a campaign of the criticism against that office and how it was managed? Hardly.

Curious also was the reaction of Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois:

"Don't ask me. Don't press me. There is no finer person in the senate than John Stennis. He is a noble man with a high sense of justice. If I were ever on trial, I would find him philosophically acceptable — don't ask me. At this moment I am not prepared to answer."

The words "philosophically acceptable" ring the same sort of alien mumbo-jumbo as Rep. Powell's influence that Sen. Stennis has no right to criticize an institution of the U.S. Government then take a position within it.

What has happened to the American tradition of representative government? By the liberals' standards, must the top positions in the federal government be filled with persons of similar philosophies? If so, the trend of the "hungry '30's" which bred some of the world's most power-mad dictators is still with us.

Far from the "Klagnhorn" type of southern senator, John Stennis is an established legal scholar who was three times elected circuit judge without opposition. Unlike many of the more modern-minded members of both political parties, he believes the history of our own nation can serve as a good basis for current high-level decisions.

Too many of today's officials have sought advice from foreign sociological writers when the answer lay in the amendments to the Constitution.

The appointment of Senator John Stennis to the Supreme Court would be a timely move, good for the nation as a whole.

Filled Woodshed

Commenting on the difference between old-fashioned and modern fuels, the St. Louis, Mo., Globe Democrat said:

"There is something about a well-filled woodshed that means peace of mind. It requires plenty of fuel to keep fires going in the kitchen range and in the nickel-trimmed base burner.

It is good to see tiers of solid maple, oak, ash and hickory. It is heartening to see a big pile of knotty chunks for the parlor stove — chunks that will burn slowly during a zero night and leave a bed of glowing coals to start the morning fire quickly. It is good to know that there is a generous pile of dry kindling.

When a man comes in from the chores these evenings, he stops with lantern and milkpail on his arm, and lets the light of the lantern play over the woodshed fuel. Modern fuel is easily obtained but it doesn't have the meaning of a

Those are beautiful and nostalgic words. They remind a man of his boyhood if he is old enough to remember woodsheds, where the "old man" was also handy with another kind of sticks—the kind applied to boys who didn't do as they were told. Those sticks—both kinds—bring wonderful memories, some happy, some not.

Wood that burns all night and leaves glowing coals in the morning is wonderful. So is gas that burns all night and is still burning in the morning. And the gas doesn't have to be toted in.

Now a man can still get the exhilarating feeling of accomplishment that cutting wood brought to him. Since he doesn't have to cut wood he can turn to other things—maybe bigger things. There's still good, honest work to be done, if a man will do it.

Lurid Hoax Bared

One of the most lurid hoaxes to come to light in many a moon was revealed when a Dallas, Tex. service station attendant admitted his story of finding $2,408,000 worth of gold bars was untrue, following a lie detector test.

After the admission, D. E. Jones, the attendant said: "The only gold I have is what's in my teeth. It cost $450 when the dentist put it in but I've been losing teeth lately."

As a matter of fact, gold in his teeth is about the only kind of gold the man can possess legally, except for certain items of jewelry. A man who finds gold these days or who says he has found gold is in for trouble. Either way, he's in a jam with the federal government and he would be better off if he left the gold unfound.

Two reasons it's unlucky to find

gold are that the federal government lays claim to buried treasure that is discovered and can place criminal charges against anyone for possessing gold. Under the setup, if any man finds gold he not only has to surrender it to the government but has to do it fast or he may be charged with illegal possession.

The government's claim of treasure discovered by an individual is inconsistent with our form of government. It conforms to the system in the dictator countries, where everything is claimed by the state. It might be as fair to tax man on his find as it is to assess an income tax but the government certainly has no more inherent right to unclaimed property than does the individual.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Great Reporters Asked No Special Immunities

The great editors and reporters of this country asked for no immunities and no protections. They took their chances and assumed their responsibilities. I am writing of such reporters as Lincoln Steffens, Charles Edward Russell, Samuel Blythe, Floyd Gibbons, Frank Ward O'Malley, H. L. Mencken, Mark Sullivan, and such publishers as William Randolph Hearst, Joseph Pulitzer, William Allen White, Joseph Medill Patterson—their number is legion in the story of freedom in the United States. These are just names that come to mind, but a little research would fill this column three or four times over with heroic publishers and editors and reporters, long before there was any such thing as a Pulitzer Prize or any other gold stars for good conduct. There was no fear among these men and women. And they wanted no immunity from the law. Journalism was a great art and profession in those days and one that paid badly.

Nowadays news is also handled as a part of theatrical business and the manner and tone are different. Television and radio are not newspapers and few men with real newspaper experience have made brilliant careers on these devices, although Hans Kaltenborn, a brilliant reporter and editor, was undoubtedly the greatest reporter on radio.

Edward R. Murrow, who recently attained a new fame as an expert on vice and its relationship to business, has never been a newspaperman. Whatever relationship he has had to news has been with radio and television and as that is show business rather than journalism, his discipline and training have been different from that of a reporter. Also, as all his work is ephemeral, passing swiftly into the air, he never had the sad experience of having his errors blue-penciled the next morning from the managing editor that there was no shortage of applicants for jobs.

In fact, Murrow's career started with Professor Stephen P. Duggan's Institute of International Education, an endowed agency for the exchange of students. Murrow left the institute to join the Columbia Broadcasting System as director of talks and education and from that he moved into news.

It is not important that Ed Murrow chooses to be regarded as an expert news gatherer. The fact is that he is not a newspaperman and cannot be recognized as one. From any standpoint he is an actor, a profession to which some fine people admit that they belong. The theater is great art, but play-acting is not journalism.

Although it has recently become fashionable for some younger newspapermen to ask for immunity from responsibility, it is not customary in this trade. A newspaper is a responsible business, subject to law. It can be sued for libel; it can be punished for being salacious or malicious. Libel, in very simple language, means lying or defaming and decent newspapermen avoid both. They check their material and their sources and although bias and errors do creep in, the writer does not dodge responsibility. However, when a topnotch reporter, such as Westbrook Pegler, discovers a crook, a swindler, a faker, he will go after him. Sometimes such reporting leads to libel suits, the judge and jury taking another view of the matter, but among strong men the libel suit was ignored as contemptible, if the reporter told the truth. However, today's jurists grant such ridiculous sums for what they call libels that newspaper owners are frightened and the reporters fear too.

As regards radio and television, the whole matter is complicated by the method of organizing the job. As it is a theatrical performance, the man who speaks the words may not have written them. The words usually come from a word factory. If the show is owned by the broadcasting company, there may be some responsibility; if it is owned by an agency or a producing company, the direct responsibility may be very remote. The fellow who wrote the words may not have gathered the facts. Murrow, for instance, in his vice show, has admitted that he neither gathered the facts nor wrote the words; he was the narrator, like Charles Laughton reading the Bible parts of which were written several thousand years ago.

Before radio and television are entitled to immunity from the law they need to learn something about responsibility under the law.

Daily Devotion

Praise the Lord; for the Lord is good; sing praise unto His name; for it is pleasant. —Psalm 135:3.

There is one way everyone can praise the Lord — and that is by attending religious services. The Psalmist realized the spiritual and soul stimulating value of praise and worship. Singing, prayer, meditation and worship are pleasant and helpful if indulged in the right spirit. And it is almost a certainty that habitual religious service attendance will create the right spirit in almost any human heart, and that soon we can say with the Psalmist, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord."

Merciful God, create within us a right spirit and clean hearts that we may enjoy regular worship. In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

Adventure

ADVENTURE is an enterprise... To look for something new... It may be mountain climbing or... A voyage on the sea... A search for gold, or challenging... Some ancient mystery... But all of it is not the kind... For which we have to roam... Adventure can be every bit... As plentiful at home... To make our own decisions and... Let nothing interfere... The courage to resign our job... And start a new career... Adventure is to fall in love... To marry and to be... The father or the mother of... A happy family.

Businessmen See Big Income Jump

Since President Eisenhower submitted his new budget — precariously balanced at $77 billion outgo, $77.1 billion income — I've queried some of the most responsible, respected business and financial leaders in the country on how realistic his projections are. In one profoundly important way the answers have been shockers.

Not the least bit startling has been the fact that I've found not one authoritative source who believes spending in the year beginning this July will be as low as the $77 billion the President proposes.

Rather, the shocker has been that I've found plenty who think income in these months will rise impressively above $77 billion — which in plain words means these experts anticipate a business upswing far stronger than the President forecasts.

And from these same men also comes the private prediction that business may be so excellent that the taxes pouring into the Treasury as a result actually could bring the budget into near balance even at much higher spending totals.

Do not underestimate the potential importance of this story to you — for if the forecasts I'm reporting here for the first time are close to accurate, just about every businessman and millions of American families will feel the happy impact. Specifically, a prediction that even the President's optimistic projections on the tax take in 1959-60 will be topped implies:

(1) A year of strong and sustained business advance to spectacular new peaks, with the critical auto industry chalking up much higher sales than in 1958 and with the basic housing industry also enjoying fine sales;

(2) A year in which America's corporations will show dazzling, record - smashing gains in profits on which they'll pay record-smashing taxes;

(3) A year in which personal incomes will climb persistently too, so individuals will pay fatter taxes on their larger paychecks, larger dividends and larger interest receipts;

(4) A year in which the bigger-than-estimated rise in Federal spending will be matched by a bigger - than - estimated rise in Federal income so the Treasury gradually will be able to pull itself out of its sea of red ink and be able to stop putting out new I. O. U.'s to cover the deficit;

(5) A year, therefore, in which a significant inflation force — a huge Government deficit — will lose much of its power;

(6) And finally, a year in which high joblessness in major industrial centers will continue to be a deeply disturbing problem, for the simple reason that the increasing efficiency of many corporations will permit them to turn out and sell more goods without hiring many more workers.

The key to the accuracy of the forecast on the Government's income in 1959-60 lies in the judgment of how big corporation profits will be.

The President's projection is based on an estimate that corporations in the 12 months beginning July 1959 will ring up $47-$48 billion of profits, an immense rise over their profits of about $36-$37 billion in 1958.

But, here are three exact quotes from men whose opinions, I repeat, are held in highest respect the nation over:

"We figure that by this fall-winter, profits will be running at a $50 billion annual rate. What people are overlooking is the extent to which corporations were able to reduce their costs and increase their efficiency in the recession. With sales climbing and efficiency so much greater, corporation profits will jump a lot faster than most people expect."

"The President's estimates project a much too modest expansion, the most sluggish advance at this stage of a business revival in 40 years. This is not a logical view. We expect a much faster rise."

"Business will start increasing its spending soon, and when this happens the whole picture will brighten. The income estimate is conservative."

Since the new budget is for a year that won't be over until 17 months from now, about the only certainty is that the figures in the headlines in July 1960 won't be the same as the figures in the headlines in January 1959.

Let's hope that the corrections are along the lines indicated above — for, boiled down, what this would mean is that the vast majority of Americans are on the threshold of the best financial period of their lives.

HOLMES ALEXANDER

Bills That Will Die Fortunate

WASHINGTON, D. C. — G. L. Gladside, the eternal optimist, was whistling his way through the corridors of the Capitol. What was there to be so happy about?

"Oh, it's wonderful," said Gladside. "Thousands of bills have already been submitted in the 86th congress. But only a very small percentage of these will pass."

Is that good?

"It's marvelous," said Gladside, who sees the glad side of everything. "For instance, I have just been reading S. 535 by Senator George Aiken of Vermont. It's the same food allotment bill which he's been offering since 1943. I realize that the country's been through two wars and a couple of recessions since then, but what if such things as the Aiken bill had passed?"

As bad as that?

"Well, this bill calls for food coupons in denominations of caloric value, to be issued to families on the basis of their purchasing power. It's hard to say how many people would get more to eat, but it would take thousands of bureaucrats to administer such a law. It would also have the effect of totally subsidizing the American farmer and virtually putting him under civil service. But — oh, boy! oh, joy — it'll never pass."

Anything else to be happy about?

"I should say so," said Gladside. "With all those freshmen congressional members, along with a new state, this could be the most unwieldy and unproductive congress in years. Think what a national blessing that would mean! Less, government; better government. I'm just dancing on air."

But, Mr. Gladside, the prediction is that all the bypassed and vetoed legislation of last year will now be hustled through by the triumphant Democrats.

"I refuse to be downcast," said Gladside. "It's true that much legislation is waiting in the wings, but a lot of it is competitive and could produce a deadlock."

Like the Jack Kennedy vs. Barry Goldwater bills on labor? And the Lyndon Johnson vs. Eisenhower administration program for civil rights?

"They could easily cancel each other out," chuckled Gladside. "After all, the country never suffered from any law that wasn't passed. There never was a problem in human relations — such as racial - labor - management affairs — that was settled by legislation. So I'm happy as the day is long over the thought that this biggest congress could be the biggest bust."

Well, if a man believes that no legislation is good legislation, he might find some consolation. This 86th congress is unwieldy in another way — the presidential possibilities. — Senatorial possibilities. Symington, Humphrey and Kennedy, while the house had Charlie Halleck.

"Oh, I am simply delighted over the thought that these men will blockade one another to a standstill," said Gladside. "But that isn't all of it. The visit of Mikoyan created a whole flock of self - appointed candidates for secretary of state — Eric Johnston, Henry Ford, Cyrus Eaton and others. This also is a year when we even have a freshman member of the house, Chester Bowles, who thinks he is a better foreign minister than anybody else. Frankly, I look for 30 much congressional stalemate that ordinary people will have a greater say in their government than ever before. That's the whole idea, of democratic rule, is it not?"

Well, yes, but... For example?

"Well," said Gladside as he beamed happily upon life, "the general public sided with Senator Symington in rebuking the vice president for his Pollyanna statements about our missile strength. It is also pretty clear that businessmen agree with Senator Johnson when he called the president's fiscal estimates a "propaganda budget." And there's no doubt whatever that the press and the public completely reversed the government and big business in their opinions on Mikoyan. The people do manage to be heard."

So, the best thing about official leadership is that it often fails to lead us into trouble. Is that it?

"I find a lot of comfort in those thoughts," agreed G. L. Gladside, the happiest man in town.

License Plates Sales Tempo Gains

Monroe - West Monroe area residents have until next Friday, Feb. 6, to purchase their 1959 automobile license plates. After that, a $1 penalty will be added to the regular $3 purchase price.

C. R. Tidwell, manager of the Fifth District Office of the State Revenue Department, estimated yesterday that approximately two-thirds of the area motorists have already purchased their tags.

"This was our heaviest week so far - but it's running about average, since a large number of the motorists usually wait until the last two weeks to purchase their license plates," he explained.

The motor vehicle section office in the Henninger Building, 138 S. Grand St., will remain open from 8-5 (its regular hours) Monday through Friday of next week.

SUB-STATIONS
Tags also will be sold at a sub-station located in the Claiborne Street fire station in West Monroe, and in sub-stations in each of the district's parishes.

The West Monroe location opened on Jan. 19. Plates were placed on sale in the Monroe office on Dec. 1, and have only one change from 1958 tags - the background is navy blue.

Truck license plates, on sale since Jan. 1, will continue to be sold without penalty until May 1, deadline for truck tag purchase.

4 Brothers File Suit For Damage In Parish Court

Four Arkansas brothers filed lawsuits with the Ouachita parish clerk of court yesterday, for damages totalling $12,061.25 for injuries and property loss they said was suffered in a rear-end collision at U. S. Highway 165, on March 2, 1958.

D. W. Smith, R. Lee Smith, Mike Smith and William Joseph Smith, all of Chicot County, are suing Derwood Lane Hollis of Ouachita Parish and the Insurance Company of the State of Pennsylvania.

D. W. Smith charges that he was driving a pickup truck north on 3.6 miles north of Monroe, at 4:30 a.m., when Hollis' auto slammed into the back of the truck, causing it to turn over several times.

CHARGES
He charges that Hollis was negligent and left the scene without offering aid. The men were taken to St. Francis Hospital for treatment.

All four men state they suffered injuries to muscles, ligaments, nerves, tissues and bones, and each was unable to return to work for several weeks.

In addition, D. W. Smith points out he received fractures of four ribs, Mike Smith states he received contusions and a sprain to the cervical spine, R. Lee Smith explains he received spinal injuries and lost $1664.75 worth of household goods loaded in the back of the truck, and William Joseph Smith mentions he suffered contusions and abrasions.

Youths Charged In Burglary Of Mangham Cafe

MANGHAM (Special) - Six area youths were held under charges of theft in Winnboro this week following a raid on a local cafe. Four were arrested and charged with theft and two were turned over to Franklin parish juvenile authorities.

Charged with simple burglary were Donnie Russell, 19; James Singer, 18; L. C. Roberts, 19, and Charles Veulman, 20, and the two juveniles.

The theft was discovered by Arlon Hutson, Mangham night marshal, who saw the car parked back of the bar at 12:45 a.m. Saturday. The car pulled away and Hutson got the license number.

He tried to catch the automobile, but failed. Members of the Richland parish sheriff's department were called in and Franklin authorities were also asked to assist in the investigation, as the car went into Franklin parish when leaving the scene of the burglary.

Six cases of beer were recovered in an empty house west of Winnboro by investigating authorities. Four young men were also apprehended at about 4 a.m. Saturday and the other two were picked up later that morning.

Sentence Given In Area Burglary

WINNSBORO (Special) In Fifth District Court at Winnboro yesterday, Willie Scott, 19, Negro, of Winnboro Star route, pleaded guilty to three charges of simple burglary.

Judge Harry N. Anders sentenced him to 15 years hard labor at the state penitentiary at Angola. He was given five years on each charge, not to run concurrently.

He said he had entered J. C. Bule commissary near Fort Necessity Dec. 28 and took two $50 bills, and the Wayne Lishman Store at Fort Necessity on the same day where he took $29 in cash, a rifle and a hunting license, and the Louis Woodrize home near Fort Necessity on Jan. 11. The loot from the home included a radio, rifle and bicycle.

Suit

A Ouachita Parish man who charges he suffered a hernia and was disabled when thrown from a truck on Oct. 14, 1958, is suing the Employers Liability Assurance Corp. Ltd. for $11,960.00 in compensation.

Hugh Sherman charges that, as he was riding in the back of a truck owned by his employer, Central Construction Co., steel forms extending out of the vehicle struck a road-side sign, and were pulled out, carrying him along and falling on him.

The suit contends that the insurance company paid him compensation until Dec. 21, then halted it although he is unable to work.

Mrs. McCoy gave her $400 she

Norris, Wirtz Sell Stock After Federal Order

NEW YORK (AP) — James D. Norris and Arthur M. Wirtz, who resigned recently as officers in the Madison Square Garden Corp. in compliance with a federal court order, have sold their stock in the famous sports arena, it was announced Friday.

Norris and Wirtz disposed of 219,350 shares—about 40 per cent of the outstanding capitalization—to Graham-Paige Corp. for 4 million dollars, the investment company said.

Federal District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan signed an order for the government to show cause Feb. 18 why the sale should not be approved.

Sale of the stock followed a recent court order directing that the International Boxing Clubs of New York and Illinois be dissolved. Norris and Wirtz were officers of the IBC.

Graham-Paige spokesmen said, "Our company has no present intention of suggesting any change in the operating management of Madison Square Garden Corporation."

The world champion Yankees have 12 rookies on their 1959 roster, plus bonus first baseman Frank Leja who was on the roster two years but played little. The rookies are John Blanchard, Cletis Boyer, Fritz Brickell, Jim Bronstad, Jim Coates, Ed Dick, John Gabler, John Jaciuk, John James, John Reed, Dick Sanders and Rudy Serrett.

8 O'CLOCK TIPOFF

Northeast Hosts Christian Brothers College Tonight

Northeast's Indians declare a brief truce in the Gulf States Conference wars tonight and aim their guns at nonleague foe Christian Brothers College of Memphis in an 8 o'clock skirmish in the Ouachita Junior High gym.

After this tussle with a team that won a 78-70 decision at Memphis in December, Lenny Fant's Redskins tackle GSC opponent Northwestern again Thursday at Natchitoches and then host Louisiana College Saturday in their last non-conference games before closing with five league battles.

Led by 6-7 Will Claiborne and 6-5 Bob Lowry, Christian Brothers is enjoying one of its best seasons and was rated 25th nationally in team defense in the latest N.A.I.A. statistical report. Lowry was ranked No. 6 in individual rebounding, just above Tech's Jackie Moreland, with an 18.9 average.

Lowry pumped in 27 points for top scoring honors in CBC's Dec. 22 triumph over Northeast at Memphis and Claiborne scored 16. The two also did the best work on the boards for the night.

CBC had allowed only 662 points in 11 games for a 60.2 defensive average according to N.A.I.A. statistics to rank 25th nationally in this department.

Northeast will be looking for victory No. 10 tonight against eight defeats. The GSC leaders in team rebounding despite a net average of barely six feet and in foul shooting, the Indians are tied for third in the conference race with a 2-2 mark.

Billy May, Ronald Doyle, John Freeman, Sid Bradley and Mickey Kitchens will again get the starting call for the Indians. Kitchens continues to lead the team in scoring with 301 points for a 16.6 average with Bradley second at 211 and 12.4.

May is the top rebounder with 253 for a 14.8 average and Doyle is second at 160 and 8.4.

Larry Stegall, Vernon Cottrell, and Fred Bradley will probably see action in relief for the Indians.

SEVEN INVOLVED

Thomas Goes To Cincy In Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night completed a seven-man player deal. The Reds obtained Frank Thomas, John Powers, Jim Pendleton and Whammy Douglas in exchange for Smokey Burgess, Don Hoak and Harvey Haddix.

The deal, announced by General Manager Gabe Paul of Cincinnati and Joe Brown, Pirates' general manager, came as a surprise and was completed after the two executives conferred here.

Paul said it was a straight player deal with no money involved.

"Actually we have been talking about such a trade ever since the season closed last fall," Brown said. "But it finally came to a head when Gabe and I got together. I think it is a deal that will help both clubs. We got what we wanted and I'm sure Gabe must have got what he also wanted."

Thomas, a 29-year-old right-handed hitting outfielder who played third base most of last season, hit .281 for the Pirates with 35 homers and 109 runs batted in. Powers, also 29, appeared in 57 games, mostly as a pinch hitter, and batted .183.

Pendleton, 33-year-old utility man, spent last season in the minors after previous trials with the Milwaukee Braves and Pirates. Douglas, a 23-year-old right-hander, also was in the minors after posting a 3-3 mark with Pittsburgh late in the 1957 season.

Haddix, a 33-year-old left-hander, and a former 20-game winner with the Cardinals, won eight and lost seven with a 3.52 earned run average for the Reds last season. Cincinnati had obtained him from the Philadelphia Phillies last winter.

Third baseman Hoak, 30, slumped to .261 for Cincinnati with only six homers and 50 RBIs after hanging at a 293 clip the previous season. He previously played with the Dodgers and Chicago Cubs.

Burgess, a left-handed hitting catcher, played in 99 games and hit for a .283 average with six homers and 51 runs batted in.

Cornelius, Rawls Tied At Tequesta

TEQUESTA, Fla. (AP) — The best woman pro's round of the Florida season boosted Kathy Cornelius Friday into a leading tie with Betsy Rawls in a continuing medal tournament here.

The Cornelius card of 69 clipped two strokes off the women's competitive course record set Nov. 8, 1958, by Marelene Hagge.

Mrs. Cornelius, wife of a Lakeland pro, shot a 35-34 score on the 6,210-yard, par 36-35 Tequesta Country Club course despite taking a double bogey 6 in playing out from under some trees on No. 14.

Miss Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., put together an 18-hole score of 73. She and Mrs. Cornelius both totaled 147 on their scores here and in the opening round Wednesday at Boca Raton. The $5,000 medal event ends Sunday at Miami Springs.

A stroke behind the leaders is Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., who led the field by three strokes at the end of the Boca Raton session.

Wanda Sanchez of Baton Rouge, La., and 14-year-old Charles McLaughlin of Miami Springs, collaborating on a 62 best ball of twosomes, won Friday's pro-amateur competition.

Atlanta, Calvin Gain Finals In Winnfield Meet

WINNFIELD, La. (Special) — Atlanta girls and Calvin boys triumphed tonight to gain berths in the finals in the District 6-C basketball tournament.

Atlanta meets Calvin in the girls' division at seven and Georgetown faces the Calvin boys at 8:15 tonight to decide the district crowns.

Charley Carter hit 19 points as Calvin thumped Dodson, 55-50. High for the losers was Paul Browning with 18.

Atlanta rolled over Dodson, 27-16, as A. Bally tallied 17. Mary Jones led Dodson with 6.

Ed Lopat won 10 straight games against Cleveland when he starred on the mound for the Yankees. The streak began June 17, 1949 and ended July 4, 1951 when a fan tossed a black cat at the south-paw.

N. Carolina Turns Back Tigers, 60-46

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina, the nation's second-ranked college basketball team, had little trouble with Clemson after the first 15 minutes Friday night and coasted to a 60-46 victory.

The Tar Heels boosted their Atlantic Coast Conference record to 6-0, after sixth-ranked North Carolina State had ACC mark 7-1 with a 63-53 defeat of South Carolina in the first game of the doubleheader.

Clemson, in losing its fourth straight game, of a 5-12 season, made a late first half run at North Carolina to cut the Tar Heel lead to 28-24 with 5 1/2 minutes left. But through the next eight minutes the Tigers went flat, scoring only one point. They trailed by 17 points with 10 minutes to play in the second half, and many in the crowd of 7,255 headed for the exits early.

North Carolina, shooting with 50 per cent efficiency in the first half for a 35-5 lead, hit only 25 per cent in the rugged second half. Coach Frank McGuire made numerous line-up changes. Sophomore Doug Moe picked up 22 points to lead the Tar Heel scoring. Backing him up with 10 were Harvey Salz and Lee Shaffer.

A 41-25 rebounding advantage helped the junior-senior dominated Tar Heels have things pretty much their own way. Sharing Clemson's scoring honors at 13 points were Bill Warren and George Krajack.

Vargas Wins Upset Over Tony Anthony

NEW YORK (AP) — Reuben Vargas, a swarming 5-1 underdog, dropped Tony Anthony for a nine count in the eighth round on the way to a split decision in a bloody 10-round brawl Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

Anthony weighed 177, Vargas 186 1/2.

Vargas, a stocky man with a mop of wavy black hair and a bristling mustache, won the votes of the referee and one judge. The other judge voted for Anthony, the lanky New Yorker who gave away 9 1/2 pounds to his opponent from Richmond, Calif.

Referee Dave Field called it even in rounds but gave Vargas the edge in points 7-5 on the strength of the knockdown. Judge Charley Rosen saw it 5-4-1 for Vargas. Judge Mike Davidowitch scored it 6-4 in favor of Anthony.

TZEL GIVEN PLAQUE

Hendrix, McCarty Honored In Ceremonies At Rayville

RAYVILLE, La. (Special) — Rayville neighbors and friends rolled out the red carpet for two of their best known athletes, Billy "Red" Hendrix and David McCarty, and their famed Louisiana State University coach, Paul Dietzel, in "Hendrix-McCarty Day" ceremonies here yesterday.

Hendrix, an end, and McCarty, a tackle, were members of the undefeated 1958 LSU football team that claimed the national colliate championship and brought Dietzel "coach of the year" honors. Hendrix captained the team.

Both Hendrix and McCarty, products of Rayville High School where they were outstanding athletes for the Hornets, were awarded plaques by the Town of Rayville in ceremonies at the Rayville High gymnasium as the climax of a mid-afternoon parade held despite cold, penetrating drizzle. Hendrix, an LSU senior, Coach Dietzel was presented a plaque by LSU alumni of the Rayville area at the night's banquet as he was unable to be present for the parade.

The Methodist Men's Club, headed by W. L. Jackson, president, and the Rev. W. D. Boddie, pastor of the Rayville Methodist Church, was host at a testimonial banquet held last night in Fellowship Hall of the church with Coach Dietzel as guest speaker.

Joe Kalil, alderman and chairman of the committee arranging the day's festivities, presented the plaques from the town to Hendrix and McCarty. The plaque for Dietzel, displayed at the gym program by Dr. George C. Purvis was given Dietzel at the banquet.

Except for the names, identical plaques went to McCarty and Hendrix reading: "LSU Tigers National Champions 1958; Sugar Bowl Champions 1959."

"The people of the town of Rayville proudly present this plaque to David McCarty (Billy Hendrix's name on his), a member of the 1958 Louisiana State University National Championship football team, in recognition of his outstanding sportsmanship and athletic prowess, and in appreciation of the honor and prestige such achievement has brought to him individually and to his home town."

The plaque to the Tiger coach said: "The LSU alumni of Rayville Louisiana, presents this plaque to Paul F. Dietzel, national Coach of the Year, and 'miracle man' who brought 'next year' to LSU this year, whose undying devotion to his boys and to his job, and whose dynamic personality and ability as a leader have brought honor and national recognition to himself, to his team, to the university and to this state of Louisiana."

James R. Craig, alderman and mayor pro tempore, presented copies of Mayor Lloyd Cloninger's proclamation proclaiming their day to Hendrix and McCarty.

Principal R. S. Hargis made the welcoming address during the gymnasium ceremony.

Jackson gave the welcoming address at the banquet after the invocation by Rev. Boddie. W. D. Cotton was toastmaster and introduced the special guests. Jackson then presented Bibles as gifts to Hendrix and McCarty from the Methodist Men's Club. Hendrix and McCarty expressed appreciation for the honors bestowed upon them by the people of Rayville.

Coach Dietzel gave a well-received address, commanding complete attention from his audience as he paid tribute to McCarty and Hendrix and to his entire LSU squad, recounting their trials during the all-winning season. He stressed the importance of clean living, making right decisions and sacrificing for the good of the squad.

GOLFER TURNS HUNTER

RED CLOUD, Neb. (AP) — Harry Obitz put away his golf clubs in time to make merry during the Montana and Nebraska hunting seasons. After doing better than all right with the upland game (pheasants and quail) and ducks with golfers Stan Dudas of Philadelphia's North Hills Country Club and Don Taylor of Mare Island Golf Club in California, Obitz bagged a 1,000-pound elk near Missoula, Mont. He also shot a deer near Hyannis, Neb.

Pete Cooper Leads Panama Open Tourney

PANAMA, Panama (AP) — Pete Cooper of Lakeland, Fla., fired an 8-under-par 64 Friday to take a three-stroke lead at the halfway point of the 72-hole Panama Open Golf Tournament.

Coupled with his 3-under-par Thursday, Cooper had a 36-hole total of 133. He turned in eight birdies on Friday's round, five of them on the back nine.

Don January of Denver moved up to second place with a 5-under-par 67, while the first round leader, Bob Watson of Ardley-on-Hudson, N.Y., fell to third with a total of 138. Watson had a 71 Friday.

Thirty-five professionals and 54 amateurs are playing in the tournament. The pros will divide $10,000 prize money.

Cooper was on the green in regulation figures on every hole. In the process, he dunked two 30-foot putts.

Games Reslated

All games regularly scheduled for Monday night, Feb. 2, in the West Monroe Recreation Basketball Leagues have been reslated for Thursday, Feb. 5, the department announced last night.

The new playing times, caused by a previous reservation of the West Monroe gymnasium, will apply for only one week.

ADMIRE PLAQUES — Pretty Charlotte McCarty, sister of LSU tackle David McCarty (center) admires plaques presented her brother and Tiger end Billy Hendrix yesterday as the town of Rayville braved a cold drizzle to show its appreciation to the two native sons who played with LSU's national-champion football team. Charlotte showed the same spirit exhibited by the LSU team in going through an undefeated season by marching in the parade despite a swollen, twisted ankle.

Dick Metz Leads Senior Tourney

By WHITNEY MARTIN

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Dick Metz, at 50 still a threat in any competition, shot a one-under-par 71 Friday for a two-round total of 138 to take the lead at the halfway point in the Professional Golfers' Assn. National Seniors' championship.

Trailing the sturdy Fort Worth, Tex., pro by one stroke was Leeland Gibson of Kansas City, Mo., another 50-year-old who tackled a 70 to the 69 he registered in the first round Wednesday. One stroke behind Gibson at 140 was Paul Runyan of La Jolla, Calif., who had a snappy 68.

The day's competition was confined to the 50-54 age group. The 55 and over field played its second round Thursday, with 60-year-old Bill Goldbeck of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., on top with a 140 total. Goldbeck's score was good enough to tie him with Runyan for third place in the over-all standings.

Girls Take Over At Fair Grounds

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The girls steal the spotlight at the Fair Grounds Saturday with the inaugural running of the $10,000 Thelma Stakes.

The six-furlong dash for three-year-old fillies is named for the late Mrs. Thelma Pelletieri, vice president of the Fair Grounds who died last summer. Mrs. Pelletieri's husband led the fight that saved the Fair Grounds from being split up into a real estate development in the early 1940's.

Gold Duchess, a chestnut daughter of Spy Song, looks like the probable favorite in the event that will wrap up distaff honors for the season. Gold Duchess was a front-running winner in the Thelma trial last Saturday, outlasting Herve Racivitch's Briarwood by a nose. Briarwood will also be in the field for the big pot Saturday.

Fidel Castro To Toss Out First Pitch

MONTREAL (AP) — Fidel Castro, leader of Cuba's successful revolution and a former university pitcher, has accepted an invitation to throw out the first pitch opening Havana's International League baseball season April 14 against Toronto.

The announcement was made Friday at the IL annual meeting by Roberto Maduro, president of the Havana Sugar Kings, a league member since 1954.

Maduro said Castro "loves baseball" and a capacity crowd of 23,000 is expected for the opening game.

He also said the Castro government had assured him of wholehearted co-operation for encouraging baseball in Cuba. The game's popularity there will undoubtedly increase, Maduro said, since the new government has abolished the numbers racket.

"This will give Cubans more money to spend and we hope a lot of it will go toward attending baseball games. With a good team the Sugar Kings would undoubtedly draw far more than last year's gate of 180,000."

Maduro described as "silly" the reported plan by Buffalo to oppose continuation of IL play in Cuba.

"Everything is back to normal now and we have the full support of the government; I can't see any obstacles," he said.

Sanders Leads San Diego Open

By BOB MYERS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Dashing young Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla., fired his second successive 66, six strokes under par, and grabbed the lead in the second round of the $20,000 San Diego Open Golf Tournament Friday with a 36-hole total of 132.

The 25-year-old professional, who won the Western Open last year and the Canadian Open while he was still an amateur in 1956, toured the par 36-72 Mission Valley Country Club course in 32-34-66 to move into a one-stroke lead.

Mike Souchak, Grossinger, N.Y., had 32-66-68 for 133. With 65, he had shared the first round lead with Bob Duden.

Duden, from Oswego, Ore., played well but a couple of bad holes sent him in with a 71 for 136.

Tied at 134 were Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., with 66-68, and Bo Winingor of Odessa, Tex.

Alone at 135 was Tony Lema, San Leandro, Calif., with 68-67. Deadlocked at 136 were Duden, Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., with 67-69, and Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn., also with 67-69.

Campbell reportedly left the course, possibly for Yuma, Ariz., or Tijuana, Mex., to wed his fiancée, with the same last name, Imogene Campbell.

The field was cut to 60 and ties with the cutoff score 143. Among those who failed to make the final two rounds were U.S. Open champion Tommy Bolt, with a pair of 72s for 144; two former National Open winners, Jack Fleck and Dick Mayer, each with 71-74-145; Billy Maxwell, 73-71-144, and Frank Stranahan, whose 69 could not offset his first round 77.

CRONIN TO BE INSTALLED

Winter Ball OK Seen For Latins

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Ford Frick is expected to ask major league club owners Saturday to lift all restrictions on Latin Americans playing winter baseball in their native lands.

Under the present rule a man who has played two consecutive years in the big leagues cannot play winter ball. Frick will make his plea on behalf of the Caribbean winter leagues.

The club owners rejected this request at their regular winter meeting in Washington, D. C., last month by a vote of 16-0.

The only other order of business at the annual midwinter meetings will be the official installation of Joe Cronin as president of the American League.

Cronin was unanimously approved recently by a special screening board selected to recommend a successor to Will Harridge, who resigned the position last Dec. 3. The Hall of Famer resigned as general manager of the Boston Red Sox following his approval by the screening committee. Bucky Harris replaced him at Boston.

The Caribbean situation may be resolved through a proposal by Frank Lane. The general manager of the Cleveland Indians said he will recommend that all Latin Americans be given carte blanche to play in their native countries provided U. S. players be allowed to play either in winter leagues or exhibition games here.

"I can understand Frick's reasoning," said Lane. "He is trying to meet every contingency. He doesn't want to give some people in Washington, who are ever ready to criticize baseball, an excuse to charge we are being discriminatory."

"But I for one don't want to be put in a position of paying ball

Fall Breaks 4 Vertebrae Of Actress

DURANGO, Mexico (AP) — Actress Audrey Hepburn, with four broken vertebrae, will be immobilized for at least six weeks. She fell from a horse during the filming of a Western movie.

Dr. Howard Mendelson, her personal physician, flew in from Hollywood Friday to make an examination. He reported there was no paralysis.
Mendelson was accompanied by Miss Hepburn's husband, Mel Ferrer. They hurried to a private home Miss Hepburn had rented.
She had been kept immobile in bed there since the accident
Wednesday.
After the examination Mendel-son issued this terse bulletin:

"Fractured transverse processes of four separate lumbar vertebrae. Six weeks total disability.
Complete bed rest four to six weeks. Badly sprained left foot.
No injury to the spinal column.
No paralysis."
The transverse process is a spur of bone on the vertebra. There are five lumbar vertebrae just above the pelvis, part of the series that make up the backbone and form a bony protection for the spinal cord.
Ferrer had planned to take his wife back to Hollywood immediately.

Miss Hepburn will be given another physical examination in two weeks and he fitted with a brace.
Doctors will decide then whether she will be allowed to return to Hollywood to complete her recovery.
Ferrer will be back in Hollywood Saturday for a few days of work on a movie, then will return to be with his wife.
Miss Hepburn was pitched from an Arabian stallion near Durango.
Camera trouble developed and when someone yelled "cut" the horse stopped abruptly. She went over the horse's head.

Miss Hepburn sent this note to
tel, where actors and actresses gather: "With all my heart I thank you. For you I would do it again."

Treason Charges Are Filed After Mistrial Granted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A mistrial was granted Friday in the sedition trial of John W. Powell, 39; his wife, and another defendant.
The government then at once filed treason charges against the three.

U.S. Dist. Judge Louis E. Goodman granted the mistrial on grounds cited by defense attorneys that the court's statements
Thursday were prejudicial.
Judge Goodman had commented, with the jury absent, that testimony already in evidence
"would be prima facie sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty under the treason statute."
The Powells and Julian Schuman, 38, of New York, went on trial charged with sedition in the publication of a Shanghai magazine during the Korean War.

Their China Monthly Review
cused the United States of engaging in germ warfare. The publication contended the accusations hampered the U.S. war effort and lowered morale.

Held at their home on the Wellman Road in West Monroe, the event was a seated dinner. At one end of the table were two tall tapers with white carnations at the base. They were placed by a satin covered heart dotted with white wedding bells and two bridal figurines.

Individuality In Fashions And Home Decor

Fashions and home decor will return to an era of individuality, predicts stage designer Cecil Beaton. "It's time for a return to individuality, and I hope it's here," said Beaton, who Thursday received the Elsie de Wolfe Memorial Award from the American Institute of Decorators. (Miss De Wolfe was considered the founder of the interior design profession.)

The dapper Englishman was given the award for his "inspiring contribution to those arts which concern our profession." Namely, his designs for the play, "My Fair Lady," and the movie, "Gigi."

"Although a trend cannot be laid at the feet of one person, Beaton's work for these shows had much to do with a return to elegance. By exposing a great number of people to it, it gained more acceptance, said an AID spokesman.

"his elegance is more difficult to commercialize, hence more individualistic, said Beaton in an interview before receiving the award.

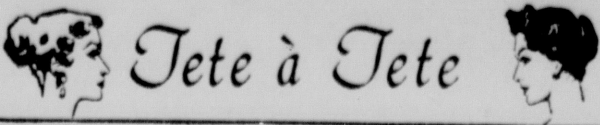

"We're developing a style that is hard to copy, hard to manufacture in bulk. It is too expensive for mass production and not easily understood," he added.

Beaton is a handsome man, tall, slender, gray-haired. His speech is as meticulous as his dress. His wit is caustic. Educated at Harrow and Cambridge, he lists his professions as writer, actor, stage designer and photographer "to the British royal family and the beauties of the world."

He has designed sets and costumes for plays, operas, ballets, and movies. Now he is editing his diaries for publication and is completing a travel book on Japan. He is spending about two months in this country to do sets and costumes for "Look After Lulu," a French farce adapted by Noel Coward, which will open here March 3. He also is doing costumes for "Dear Liar" which will tour the United States.

Beaton does not believe his costumes for "Look After Lulu" will influence women's fashions as did those in "My Fair Lady."

"No opportunity," he said. "The farce is set in 1908 and has no bearing on life today—which gives the play every chance of success. "But then, I don't think this is a barren year in fashion. It has enormous vitality."

MR. AND MRS. A. B. COBB of Baton Rouge concluded their visit of several days here and returned to their home in Baton Rouge Friday. They were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Ronald Lee Davis Jr. and Mr. Davis.

AT HOME AGAIN after two weeks in St. Petersburg, Florida are Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Faulk. They returned to Monroe earlier this week.

TOM AND MARY EDITH HAYES are the parents of a little son, born Tuesday, January 27. The baby, whom they have named Peter Bernard, is their 4th son and sixth child. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Armand Breard and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hayes.

DR. AND MRS. CLARENCE A. ROBERTS are the parents of a daughter, Susan, who was born January 28. She has a sister named Karen and a brother, Tommy. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Ruth of Cincinnati, Ohio and Mrs. George Holtsclaw, of Canton, Ohio.

Attendants Chosen For Slagle-Jarrell Ceremony

Attendants for the marriage of Miss Ann Jarrell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Cecil Palmer Jarrell, to Elmer Cuthbert Slagle, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cuthbert Slagle, have been announced.

The bride has chosen her roommate from Newcomb College, Miss Katherine Ketelsen of Houston, Texas, as her maid of honor. Her other attendants are Miss Diana Cutler and her cousin, Miss Harriet Buie, of Fort Necessity.

Mr. Slagle will be attended by George Marion Snellings

Jr. as best man. The groomsmen are Speed Bancroft, a cousin of the groom, and Palmer Jarrell, the brother of the bride.

Tuesday, February 10, has been chosen as the date for the double ring ceremony, with relatives and intimate friends of the two families present. It will be held in Grace Episcopal Church at 2:00 p.m. with the Reverend Donald Davies officiating.

A small wedding reception will be held immediately following the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents on Emerson Avenue.

Series Of Bridal Parties Compliment Miss Filhoil

A mid-day luncheon, morning coffee and an afternoon party continued the series of pre-nuptial courtesies honoring Miss Florence Jeanne Filhoil, fiancée of John Thames Wilson, whose wedding will take place this morning in a nuptial mass at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Grace Granberry, Mrs. Bill Luton and Mrs. Aaron Stout were hostesses at a luncheon in the Stout home where white gladioli and lilies of the valley were used in decorations. The honoree was wearing a dark red two-piece dress with a corsage of pink carnations, a gift from her hostesses. They also presented her with a gift of crystal.

The guests were Mrs. J. B. Filhoil, Jr., Mrs. J. B. Filhoil, Miss Marie Filhoil, Mrs. W. A. Calloway, Mrs. Ida Lowe, Mrs. Hamilton Faust.

The Miro Book Club took this occasion to present Miss Filhoil with a lovely silver bowl.

Another hostess of the week was Mrs. Kermit Paylor who entertained with a conversational hour. The Paylor home was gay with red and white hearts tied with red and white ribbons hanging from the ceiling and placed about the party rooms. A red and white cloth bordered with red hearts, with a tiny bride doll as the centerpiece, further carried out the bridal theme.

With the honoree were Miss Carol Varner, Mrs. Jerry Lee, Miss Virginia Dunn, Miss Patsy Doane and Mrs. Jon Barker.

A Valentine Motif Used At B&PW Meeting

The Business and Professional Women's Club met Tuesday 27th, at the Y. W. C. A. for their January program meeting.

The president, Mrs. Marguerite Meek, called the meeting to order and welcomed the members and guests. A brief business discussion followed in which Mrs. Bessie Skinner, finance chairman, urged all members to assist in the Community Clubs Awards.

Mrs. Meek then presented Miss Elizabeth Stenberg, program chairman, for the month, who in turn graciously introduced Dr. Earnest D. Holloway, dean of men, at Northeast College, who spoke on the subject "Improving the Mental Attitude and Working Efficiency of Women." Dr. Holloway said in part: One who is not interested in improving their job is not worthy of the job. One must believe in their job in order to be efficient. Your mental attitude must reflect belief in your product. Then one owes it to themselves and their employer to keep physically sound in order to produce satisfaction.

Mrs. Flora Seamon, Miss Lula Swinson, Mrs. Salome DeLarot, Mrs. Clarice King, were hostesses for the evening. The lace-covered table in the dining room was centered with red carnations, fashioned with lace and red and silver ribbons, into an old-fashioned valentine. Green ivy trailed the entire length of the table. Red candles placed diagonally at each end made a pleasing picture. Mrs. Seamon poured from a lovely silver coffee and tea service while Mrs. King, Miss Swinson and Mrs. DeLarot, passed delicious sandwiches, heart-shaped cakes and red mints to the following members and guests: Zera Edwards, Laura Slaton, Flora M. Seamon, Carice King, Mary O'Kelly, Mamie Ober, Alice Baur, Lucille Mathes, Agnes Krogmire, Nethal McDermot, Marguerite Meek, Zylpha Wainwright, Gladys Miles, Bessie Skinner, Camille Harrison, Elizabeth Stenberg, Elizabeth Burdeaux, Mary Gene Lea, Helen Trichel, Jewel Wise, Inas Gwin, Lula Swinson, Salome DeLarot, India Calder, Alberta Damico, Marguerite R. YOUR BABY AND MINE

The Housekeeper Is A Mother Substitute

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

When a mother has to leave her children in charge of a housekeeper it should be taken for granted that when she is at home the children will defer to her and her wishes.

The housekeeper is the mother substitute when mother is gone and gives advice and disciplines in that role. But once the parent is in the house she relinquishes the children to the parent.

If the mother is more stern than the housekeeper, then the children will have to accommodate themselves to that fact. This is just as true if she happens to be more lenient. A mother does not abdicate her position as the child's guide just because someone else has to take over for her when she is away.

WORRIED

Mrs. F.S. is worried that she is so lenient with the children that they want her around all the time. She thinks the housekeeper is fine with them and the children mind her. But because she (mother) is at their beck and call when she is home, they want her all the time.

The real problem is that you and the housekeeper have not worked out your individual roles satisfactorily. The children should be expected to obey her when you are not at home and you should not go counter to what she has told them. In fact you should say to them, "This is fine if Clara (let's call her that for clarity's sake) told you you could."

But when it is a new issue, something which arises after you are home at night, or during these weeks you take off to be with them, then Clara should defer to you. "Ask your mother," she should tell the children and show the respect to you that she expects from them when you are not at home.

DON'T LET UP

You are somewhat in the position of the father, who, having been gone all day, is inclined to be lenient with the child's demands because he hasn't had to cope with them for eight hours. If he is lenient, allow him to be; but do not change your own methods when he isn't there.

Leniency is a matter of expediency at times and also a personality trait. The housekeeper has to be less lenient because she has the responsibility of the children during their active hours and is accountable to you.

Be glad she is firm, since she is nice and likes the children, and don't worry if you spoil them a little on your off days. They will learn to adjust themselves to both of you and be none the worse for it.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Unlikely You Can Have Long Marriage Annulled

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow — every weekend from late September through December. My husband is a hunting fanatic. He's crazy about shooting deer, elk, geese, pheasant, anything in season that moves.

Meanwhile I sit with four children waiting for him to come home. When he DOES come home he's too tired to say "hello" before he drops in bed.

Hunting is an expensive sport and we aren't rich people. His car expenses for these trips, plus ammunition and supplies, new type guns, and what have you, keep us pretty well strapped.

Our friends never include us during hunting season because they know George is away. In order to make these trips every weekend he must work nights so I never see him. All this strikes me as being unfair.

My father-in-law says I should be happy George is chasing game, not women. This is no comfort. What do you say, Ann Landers? — MARKSMAN'S WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Wives have complained about hunter-husbands ever since the bow and arrow. No one has been able to come up with a pat solution, but here are a few practical suggestions, and I hope they help.

Three out of four is a pretty good average for any hunter. Ask your husband to compromise and stay home one week-end a month during the season. This is not an unreasonable request. Then plan some hen parties when you know he'll be away. The left-at-home-wives of hunters often get together and have a wonderful time.

Some women say they like hunting season because it gives them a chance to catch up on mending, letter-writing, reading, closet cleaning, etc.

And P. S. Don't tattle to your father-in-law. It casts you in the role of a whiner, or a shrew.

DEAR ANN: I'm engaged to a wonderful Air Force man. We will marry as soon as I finish business college.

My problem is this: He intends to make the Air Force his career. We are planning to buy a trailer so we won't have to live in hotels, apartments and so on. I want to marry him but I wonder what life will be like, moving around and bringing up children under these conditions and not having permanent roots.

I'm asking you to please print my letter in the hope that a few service-men's wives will write in to say how they feel about living on a base instead of having a regular home. —WONDERING

P. S. I hope you will not print my real initials because I would not like my fiancé to know I am worrying about this. Thank you.

DEAR WONDERING: I am printing your letter and promise to print also the best letter I receive from a serviceman's wife, dealing with this problem. You're welcome.

DEAR ANN: Just 24 years ago I married a girl who had all the attributes of the queen for my dream house. She could have made you think black was white.

I learned shortly after our marriage that she lied about her age. She was 8 years older than I. Also I paid for the improvements on some property which she owned, the understanding being

Blue Circle Club Of Lenwil School Meets

The Blue Circle Club of Lenwil School met with Elaine Mann, president, presiding. Thelma Miller led the group in repeating the Twenty-third Psalm as the devotional.

Patricia Terrell, program chairman, was in charge of the program. "Getting to Know You" was the theme for the day. The membership was divided in "twos", each two girls introduced the other and told some interesting fact about the other. One interesting fact was the number of churches represented; they were as follows: Baptist, Pentecostal, Church of God, Seven Day Adventist, Church of Christ and Jehovah's Witness. Each girl told what hobby they were interested in and how much they enjoyed it. Some of them were: basketball, football, skating, bowling, dancing, swimming, eating, art and collecting stamps.

Girls present at the meeting were as follows: Patricia Terrell, Nancy Lee Sanders, Shirley Lynn Averette, Cheryl Terry, Marie Walker, Sharon Tippen, Betty Holton, Shirley Knighten, Elaine Mann, Joyce Lowery, Dianne Downs, Brenda Arrant, Dorothy Clark, Vickie Martin, Linda Arant, Betty Jo Wilbanks, Linda Estes and Shirley Long.

that when the property was sold I was to share in the proceeds. She made a sale behind my back and put the money in a secret account.

Must I put up with this crookedness for the rest of my life or is there a chance that I can have the marriage annulled? — DIS-ENCHANTED

DEAR DISENCHANTED: It's unlikely that you can have a marriage annulled after 24 years because your wife lied about her age and did you out of money on a business transaction. I'm no lawyer, however, and suggest you obtain a legal opinion.

And while you're at it, why not see a marriage counselor about getting this badly derailed relationship back on the track? If people worked as hard to save a marriage as they do to kill it they'd be surprised at the positive results.

Hudson.

Tuesday's compliment was a luncheon given in the Cedar Room of the Rendezvous with Mrs.

Global Day Of Prayer Is Planned

The Twin Cities will join with Christians over the globe in fellowship of meditation and prayer to satisfy our time's needs on World Day of Prayer, Friday, February 13.

For more than ten years this special day has been planned locally by the United Church Women of Monroe and West Monroe who always use a service prepared by women in different countries.

"Lord, I Believe," will be the theme of this year's observance. Egyptian women of the ancient Coptic Church are credited with the 1959 topic.

Preparation for the day is directed by a committee composed of Mrs. J. M. Smith, Mrs. C. S. Foster and Mrs. DeWitt Henry who are responsible for children's, young people's and adult services respectively.

Mrs. Henry outlined a plan which calls for eight morning, afternoon and evening services in four Twin City areas. Each service will have a leader from one of the 18 churches of the local council and four speakers in costume to present the world-wide home and mission projects for which the offering will be made.

DISMISSAL

Immediately following school dismissal on February 13, five children's services have been arranged by Mrs. Smith. She urges that parents see that their children attend the service nearest their home.

A young people's service is scheduled Sunday, February 15, from the First Methodist Church in Monroe at 4 p.m.

Recognition of the World Day of Prayer will begin on the Tonga Islands when Queen Salote leads her subjects in prayer, then will travel westward with the sun until the last supplications are spoken in the Aleutian Islands.

Following is a complete local schedule of services released by Mrs. Sid Walker, publicity chairman of the church women's organization.

This Year's Cotton Price Supports Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department today announced a base price support of 30.40 cents a pound for this year's cotton grown in compliance with regular federal planting control allotments.

It also announced a base rate of 24.70 cents for cotton grown under an alternate production control program allowing growers to exceed regular allotments 40 per cent.

These rates apply to 1/8-inch cotton, the base grade for price support purposes.

Premiums are offered for better grades, while poorer ones are discounted.

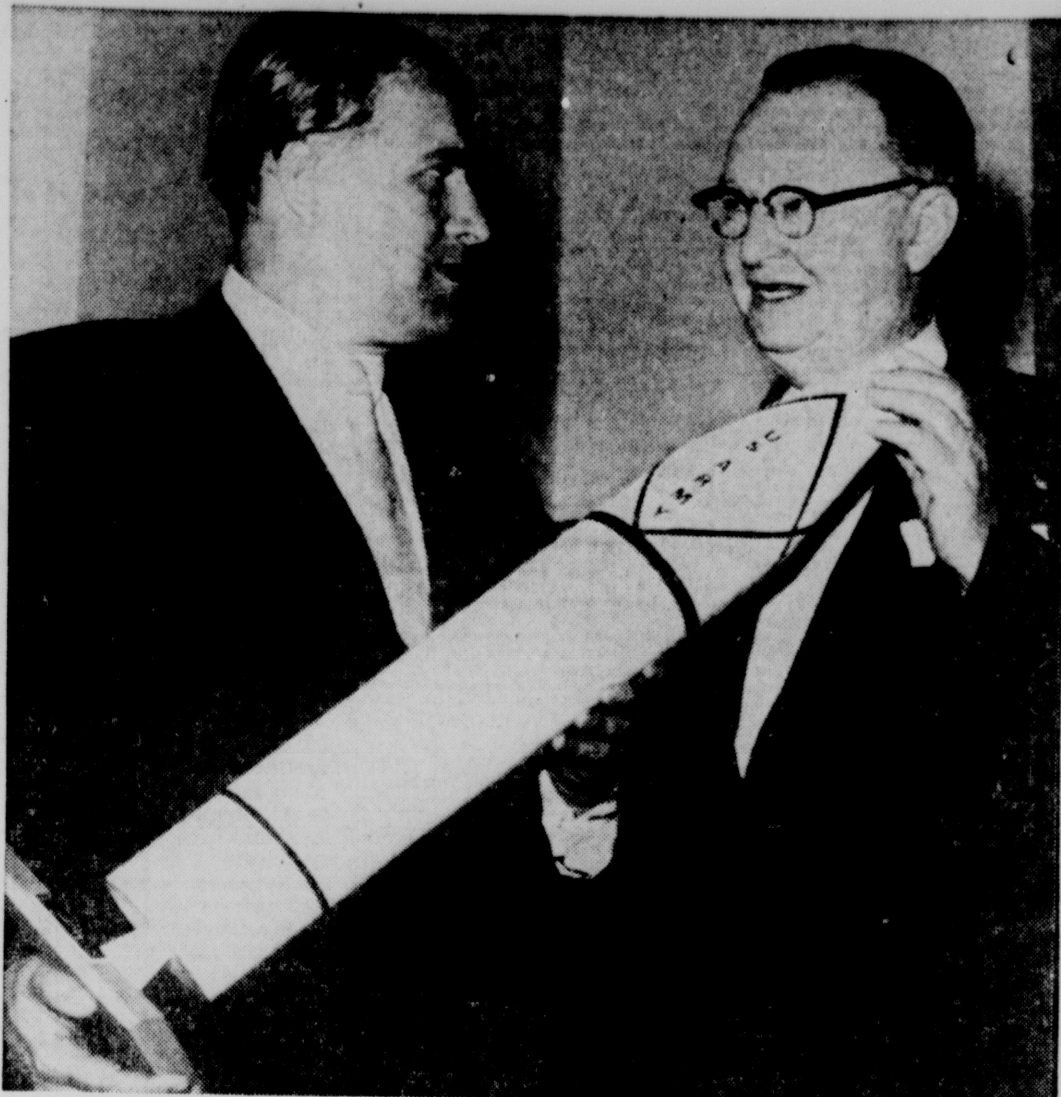

Legislation enacted last year set up the alternate choice program granting supports at not less than 80 per cent of parity for growers complying with allotments and 15 parity percentage points less for growers complying with allotments and 15 parity percentage points less for growers electing to overplant allotments 40 per cent.

Last year's single base rate—only for cotton grown in compliance with allotments—with 31.32 cents a pound.

Today's rates reflect 80 per cent and 65 per cent of parity, respectively, for the two levels of support. The rates were based upon the department's calculation that the parity price of cotton next Aug. 1, the beginning of the 1959 crop marketing year, will be 38 cents a pound.

This compares with 38.55 cents for the parity price last Aug. 1. Supports are extended through loans on cotton withheld from markets.

In another action the department announced that it will take title to any 1958 crop cotton still stored under price support at the close of business next Aug. 31. This means that the department would cancel the grower loans and take possession of the cotton as payment for the obligations.

U.S. Heroes Honored By Commission

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Two Maine residents — a 70-year-old woman and an 11-year-old boy — who risked their lives to save others from drowning were among 19 persons honored Friday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

The awards made at the 55th annual meeting of the commission showed age was no barrier in heroism. Three teen-age girls were cited for spectacular rescues. Bronze medals were awarded in all cases.

Five of the heroes gave their lives in rescues. Five pensions of $4,800 a year each were granted. Awards totaling $5,500 were made in 14 cases for educational and other worthy purposes. In such instances, payments will be made only upon approval of the beneficiaries' plans by the commission.

Mrs. Florence Weaver, 70, proved the significance of the name of her home town—Friendship, Maine—when she disregarded her heart ailment to save the life of a woman nine years her junior.

Norman E. Mattson, 11, Week Mills, Maine, saved a 4-year-old Norman J. Moulton Jr. from drowning at China, Maine, April 27, 1958. The younger boy fell through rotten boards around an abandoned well and dropped into 20 feet of water.

The awards are made from a 5-million dollar trust fund established by the late Andrew W. Carnegie. Pittsburgh steel magnate. The commission reviews reports of heroism in the United States and Canada three times a year.

Cubans Act To Speed Up War Trials

HAVANA (UPI) — The Cuban government suspended three articles of the constitution for 90 days Friday to give revolutionary tribunals sweeping jurisdiction over "war criminals" and speed up trials.

The action will let revolutionary authorities arrest and hold suspects for more than 72 hours without producing them in court and will permit the tribunals to try civilians as well as military defendants.

The trials were scheduled to be resumed in Havana's Cabana Fortress and nearby Camp Columbia at about 9 p.m. on an accelerated basis. Foremost defendant was "War Criminal No. 3," Lt. Col. Ricardo L. Grao.

Simultaneously, the supreme military tribunal was summoned to hear appeals of the top two "war criminals," Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco and Maj. Pedro Morejon Valdes.

Informed sources predicted the appeals would be rejected and the two men would be shot at dawn Saturday.

Firing squads Friday morning executed one soldier and four members of former Sen. Rolando Masferrer's private army in Manzanilla. They were convicted of being "war assassins."

Meanwhile, the Council of Ministers moved to legalize gambling again in the same session in which it suspended the constitutional guarantees.

Meeting until nearly dawn—much of Cuba's official business is conducted at night to escape the daytime heat — the ministers designated a high-level three-man commission to draft a new gambling law.

The main street of Helena, Mont., was once named "Last Chance Gulch" by four discouraged prospectors. They decided to give up prospecting if they didn't find gold there. They found one of the biggest gold strikes in history.

YOUR INCOME TAX NO. 4

New Rule Is Designed To Flush Will Profits Made On Expense AccounRS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This series has already discussed which form is best, classes of returns, exemptions, and non-taxable income. Today's topic is job-connected expenses and expense accounts. Future articles will explain deductions and provide tips on guarding against errors. Clip and save all for use when you begin filing out your return.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Staff Writer

For 37 years, Uncle Sam has been trying to ferret out chiselers who make money on expense accounts but try to escape getting taxed on their profit. This year he's trying something new.

All tax forms have been revised so every taxpayer has to give yes or no answers about expense accounts.

Ever since 1921, the law has required taxpayers to report as income all money received on expense accounts. Such income could be offset, at least in part, by deducting actual job-connected expenses.

SOME NEW RULES

In addition to revising the tax forms, the Internal Revenue Service this year has changed the rules for listing expense money as income. They boil down to this:

So long as you didn't make a profit on your expense account — by collecting more than you spent — you don't have to list expense money as income.

If you did make a profit, you have to report it as "excess reimbursements" on line 5 of tax form 1040 (you can't use the simple form 1040A) and pay a tax on it.

Even if you didn't make a profit, it may pay you to give IRS an accounting of your expense money. This could be the case if you spent more money in connection with your job than you collected on your expense account.

If so, you can list expense money as income and deduct your actual expenses. Some of these expenses can be deducted on page 1 of form 1040 and some can be deducted only if you itemize deductions on page 2. The different categories will be explained later.

FORM 1040 ONLY

Any taxpayer who chooses to deduct job-connected expenses must use form 1040.

Regardless of which form you use, however, you're going to have to answer at least one question about expense money.

Line 8 of form 1040A has a new box which you check if you had to account to your employer for the expense money he gave you during 1958. The accompanying instructions state that if you didn't account for expense money, or collected more than you spent, you must file form 1040.

On form 1040, two new questions have been added on page 1. They must be answered by everyone using this form. The questions:

1. "Did you receive an expense allowance or reimbursement, or charge expenses to your employer?"

2. "If 'yes,' did you submit an itemized accounting of expenses to your employer?"

A "no" answer to the first question means you can forget about the problem of job expenses as far as IRS is concerned. However, if you had job-connected expenses and weren't reimbursed by your employer, you can still claim deductions for these outlays.

If you answer "no" to the second question, you have to list for IRS your actual job expenses together with expense money received from your employer.

DEDUCTIBLE ITEMS

You can make the accounting on a plain sheet of paper, which you should attach to your tax return. This statement must give the nature of your occupation and list the number of days you were away from home on business during 1958.

In listing your expenses for IRS, you break them down into broad categories such as transportation, meals, lodging and entertainment.

A statement of this type must also be submitted if you report "excess reimbursements" or claim deductions for expenses which exceeded reimbursements.

DEDUCTIBLE ITEMS

Items which you can deduct on line 5 of form 1040 are:

1. Expenses of business trips away from the city where you normally work, provided you stay away at least overnight. You can't include here any entertainment expenses or such personal outlays as getting a suit pressed.

2. Other transportation expenses, though not the cost of getting to and from work. This can cover taxi and streetcar fares and the use of your own auto while on business, even in the city where you work.

3. Expenses of outside salesmen. This includes all necessary and ordinary expenses. It applies only to fulltime salesmen who solicit business for their employers' place of business.

4. Any other job-connected expenses. These can be deducted on page 1 form 1040, but only up to the amount for which you were reimbursed by your employer. If you weren't fully reimbursed, the additional expenses must be listed among itemized deductions on page 2 if you want to claim them.

SPECIAL TREATMENT

Like job expenses, sick pay and retirement income get special tax treatment, but within strict limits.

If you were off work in 1958 your employer continued to pay you, at his expense, you can exclude up to $100 a week of such pay. If you continued to draw pay through a plan you paid for, the $100 ceiling doesn't apply.

Your sick pay exclusion begins on the first day you're absent from work if you're injured, or if you are hospitalized for even one day because of illness.

If your absence is due to illness and you aren't hospitalized, the exclusion begins after one week away from work.

Anyone making $100 a week or less excludes from his income one day's pay for each working day covered by the sick pay rules. If you make more than $100, you divide $100 by the number of days you normally work a week, then multiply this amount by the number of days you're entitled to exclude.

Sick pay exclusions are entered on line 6 of form 1040. You can't claim the exclusion on form 1040A.

ATTACH DATE LIST

You should attach to your return a statement showing the dates you were absent, the nature of your illness or injury, whether or not, you were hospitalized and when, and how you figured the amount excluded.

Some income from pensions and annuities can also be excluded. The law permits retired people to get back, tax free, the amount they paid toward pension or annuity plans while working. The rules are spelled out on page 12 of the instruction booklet that goes with form 1040.

Even if some of your pension or other retirement income is taxable, you may be able to claim a tax credit of up to $240. This is discussed on page 14 of the instructions.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Unlikely You Can Have Long Marriage Annulled

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow — every weekend from late September through December. My husband is a hunting fanatic. He's crazy about shooting deer, elk, geese, pheasant, anything in season that moves.

Meanwhile I sit with four children waiting for him to come home. When he DOES come home he's too tired to say "hello" before he drops in bed.

Hunting is an expensive sport and we aren't rich people. His car expenses for these trips, plus ammunition and supplies, new type guns, and what have you, keep us pretty well strapped.

Our friends never include us during hunting season because they know George is away. In order to make these trips every weekend he must work nights so I never see him. All this strikes me as being unfair.

My father-in-law says I should be happy George is chasing game, not women. This is no comfort. What do you say, Ann Landers? — MARKSMAN'S WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Wives have complained about hunter-husbands ever since the bow and arrow. No one has been able to come up with a pat solution, but here are a few practical suggestions, and I hope they help.

Three out of four is a pretty good average for any hunter. Ask your husband to compromise and stay home one week-end and a month during the season. This is not an unreasonable request. Then plan some hen parties when you know he'll be away. The left-at-home-wives of hunters often get together and have a wonderful time.

Some women say they like hunting season because it gives them a chance to catch up on mending, letter-writing, reading, closet cleaning, etc.

And P. S. Don't tattle to your father-in-law. It casts you in the role of a whiner, or a shrew.

DEAR ANN: I'm engaged to a wonderful Air Force man. We will marry as soon as I finish business college.

My problem is this: He intends to make the Air Force his career. We are planning to buy a trailer so we won't have to live in hotels, apartments and so on. I want to marry him but I wonder what life will be like, moving around and bringing up children under these conditions and not having permanent roots.

I'm asking you to please print my letter in the hope that a few service-men's wives will write in to say how they feel about living on a base instead of having a regular home. —WONDERING

(P.S. I hope you will not print my real initials because I would not like my fiancé to know I am worrying about this. Thank you.)

DEAR WONDERING: I am printing your letter and promise to print also the best letter I receive from a serviceman's wife, dealing with this problem. You're welcome.

DEAR ANN: Just 24 years ago I married a girl who had all the attributes of the queen for my dream house. She could have made you think black was white. I learned shortly after our marriage that she lied about her age. She was 8 years older than I. Also I paid for the improvements on some property which she owned, the understanding being

The Blue Circle Club of Lenwil School met with Elaine Mann, president, presiding. Thelma Miller led the group in repeating the Twenty-third Psalm as the devotional.

Patricia Terrell, program chairman, was in charge of the program. "Getting to Know You" was the theme for the day. The membership was divided in "twos", each two girls introduced the other and told some interesting fact about the other. One interesting fact was the number of churches represented, they were as follows: Baptist, Pentecostal, Church of God, Seven Day Adventist, Church of Christ and Jehovah's Witness. Each girl told what hobby they were interested in and how much they enjoyed it. Some of them were: basketball, football, skating, bowling, dancing, swimming, eating, art and collecting stamps.

Girls present at the meeting were as follows: Patricia Terrell, Nancy Lee Sanders, Shirley Lynn Averette, Cheryl Terry, Marie Walker, Sharon Tippen, Betty Holton, Shirley Knighten, Elaine Mann, Joyce Lowery, Dianne Downs, Brenda Arrant, Dorothy Clark, Vicky Martin, Linda Arrant, Betty Jo Wilbanks, Linda Estes and Shirley Long.

that when the property was sold I was to share in the proceeds. She made a sale behind my back and put the money in a secret account.

Must I put up with this crookedness for the rest of my life or is there a chance that I can have the marriage annulled? — DIS-ENCHANTED

DEAR DISENCHANTED: It's unlikely that you can have a marriage annulled after 24 years because your wife lied about her age and did you out of money on a business transaction. I'm no lawyer, however, and suggest you obtain a legal opinion.

And while you're at it, why not see a marriage counselor about getting this badly derailed relationship back on the track? If people worked as hard to save a marriage as they do to kill it they'd be surprised at the positive results.

tial affairs was the party given on Sunday afternoon by Miss Kay Cotton and Miss Jo Ann Cotton in the home of their mother, Mrs. Wade Cotton. A pink and white theme was used in both the living and dining rooms. For the party, the honoree wore an electric blue crepe sheath accented with a jeweled pin.

Lewis, Mrs. Sara Lou Sims, Miss Lynn Zoll, Miss Dawson Ann Forman, Miss Loretta Ray, Miss Kay McCue, Miss Kay Perkins, Miss Joan McGruder, Miss Kaki Walker, Miss Gaye Olcott, Miss Betty Scott, Miss Emily Kay Ensminger, Miss Gwen John, Miss Anna Don Cummins, Miss Janis Futrell, Miss Carolyn Futrell, Miss Sandra Wilder, Miss Mary Anna Allick, Miss Brenda Ringo.

LUNCHEONS Monday, Mrs. Lawrence Hulin, Miss Barbara Hulin and Mrs. Wayne Huckaby entertained with a luncheon at the Virginia Hotel. The places of the guests were marked with camellia corsages. Sharing this courtesy with the hostesses and honoree were Mrs. Herbert Brown and Miss Beth Brown, of Jackson, Miss. Mrs. Frank Guerriero, Mrs. George Forman, Mrs. John P. Zoll and Mrs. John A. Hudson.

Tuesday's compliment was a luncheon given in the Cedar Room of the Rendezvous with Mrs.

James E. Lewis, hostess. A silver bowl filled with white daisies and stephanotis and dotted with pencil slim tapers formed the centerpiece for the table. Place cards embossed with wedding bells named the guests who were Miss Beth Brown, of Jackson, Miss. Miss Lynn Zoll, Miss Dawson Ann Forman, Mrs. Rayburn Wooten and the hostess and honor guest.

Global Day Of Prayer Is Planned

The Twin Cities will join with Christians over the globe in fellowship of meditation and prayer to satisfy our time's needs on World Day of Prayer, Friday, February 13.

For more than ten years this special day has been planned locally by the United Church Women of Monroe and West Monroe who always use a service prepared by women in different countries.

"Lord, I Believe," will be the theme of this year's observance. Egyptian women of the ancient Coptic Church are credited with the 1959 topic.

Preparation for the day is directed by a committee composed of Mrs. J. M. Smith, Mrs. C. S. Foster and Mrs. DeWitt Henry who are responsible for children's, young people's and adult services respectively.

Mrs. Henry outlined a plan which calls for eight morning, afternoon and evening services in four Twin City areas. Each service will have a leader from one of the 18 churches of the local council and four speakers in costume to present the world-wide home and mission projects for which the offering will be made.

DISMISSAL Immediately following school dismissal on February 13, five children's services have been arranged by Mrs. Smith. She urges that parents see that their children attend the service nearest their home.

A young people's service is scheduled Sunday, February 15, from the First Methodist Church in Monroe at 4 p.m.

Recognition of the World Day of Prayer will begin on the Tonga Islands when Queen Salote leads her subjects in prayer, then will travel westward with the sun until the last supplications are spoken in the Aleutian Islands.

Following is a complete local schedule of services released by Mrs. Sid Walker, publicity chairman of the church women's organization.

Large Retail Store Slated For W. Monroe

Plans have been announced by Joe G. Durrett head of the Monroe Furniture Company interests in Louisiana, to construct a large retail store building on Cypress street in West Monroe.

A lot on the 300 block of Cypress street has been purchased by Durrett and his two sons, Joe G. Durrett Jr. and W. D. Durrett.

The building, when completed, will house the Durrett interests West Monroe retail operation, providing an expansion of five times the facilities now occupied on Trenton Street.

The new location is directly across Cypress street from the new library.

Work on the brick building will begin within two months, according to Durrett. He said cost of the building will range from $45,000 to $65,000.

Scouting Group Will Meet Here

Honor Scouts and Scouters, all members of the Order of the Arrow, will come from all parts of Louisiana and Arkansas for a meeting here today.

Jack E. Pankey, Ouachita Valley Council chief executive, said the Area 3-D OA meeting is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. at the United Gas building on Louisville Avenue.

Expected to run until 3 p.m., the meeting will concern plans for the new year.

Northeast Louisiana will be well represented, Pankey said, and Scouts and Scouters are scheduled to come from El Dorado, Little Rock, Hot Springs, Lake Charles, Alexandria and Shreveport.

Pankey serves as advisor for the area organization. The Order of the Arrow is a honor society within the Scouting organization.

OA members are chosen on the basis character, ability and participation in the Scout program.

This Year's Cotton Price Supports Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department today announced a base price support of 30.40 cents a pound for this year's cotton grown in compliance with regular federal planting control allotments.

It also announced a base rate of 24.70 cents for cotton grown under an alternate production control program allowing growers to exceed regular allotments 40 per cent.

These rates apply to 3/8-inch cotton, the base grade for price support purposes.

Premiums are offered for better grades, while poorer ones are discounted.

Legislation enacted last year set up the alternate choice program granting supports at not less than 80 per cent of parity for growers complying with allotments and 15 parity percentage points less for growers complying with allotments and 15 parity percentage points less for growers electing to overplant allotments 40 per cent.

Last year's single base rate—only for cotton grown in compliance with allotments—with 31.32 cents a pound.

Today's rates reflect 80 per cent and 65 per cent of parity, respectively, for the two levels of support. The rates were based upon the department's calculation that the parity price of cotton next Aug. 1, the beginning of the 1959 crop marketing year, will be 38 cents a pound.

This compares with 38.55 cents for the parity price last Aug. 1. Supports are extended through loans on cotton withheld from markets.

In another action the department announced that it will take title to any 1958 crop cotton still stored under price support at the close of business next Aug. 31. This means that the department would cancel the grower loans and take possession of the cotton as payment for the obligations.

U.S. Heroes Honored By Commission

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Two Maine residents — a 70-year-old woman and an 11-year-old boy — who risked their lives to save others from drowning were among 19 persons honored Friday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

The awards made at the 55th annual meeting of the commission showed age was no barrier in heroism. Three teen-age girls were cited for spectacular rescues. Bronze medals were awarded in all cases.

Five of the heroes gave their lives in rescues. Five pensions of $4,800 a year each were granted. Awards totaling $5,500 were made in 14 cases for educational and other worthy purposes. In such instances, payments will be made only upon approval of the beneficiaries' plans by the commission.

Mrs. Florence Weaver, 70, proved the significance of the name of her home town—Friendship, Maine—when she disregarded her heart ailment to save the life of a woman nine years her junior.

Norman E. Mattson, 11, Week Mills, Maine, saved a 4-year-old Norman J. Moulton Jr. from drowning at China, Maine, April 27, 1958. The younger boy fell through rotted boards around an abandoned well and dropped into 20 feet of water.

Cubans Act To Speed Up War Trials

HAVANA (UPI) — The Cuban government suspended three articles of the constitution for 90 days Friday to give revolutionary tribunals sweeping jurisdiction over "war criminals" and speed up trials.

The action will let revolutionary authorities arrest and hold suspects for more than 72 hours without producing them in court and will permit the tribunals to try civilians as well as military defendants.

The trials were scheduled to be resumed in Havana's Cabana Fortress and nearby Camp Columbia at about 9 p.m. on an accelerated basis. Foremost defendant was "War Criminal No. 3," Lt. Col. Ricardo L. Grao.

Simultaneously, the supreme military tribunal was summoned to hear appeals of the top two "war criminals," Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco and Maj. Pedro Morejon Valdes.

Informed sources predicted the appeals would be rejected and the two men would be shot at dawn Saturday.

Firing squads Friday morning executed one soldier and four members of former Sen. Rolando Masferrer's private army in Manzanilla. They were convicted of being "war assassins."

Meanwhile, the Council of Ministers moved to legalize gambling again in the same session in which it suspended the constitutional guarantees.

Meeting until nearly dawn—much of Cuba's official business is conducted at night to escape the daytime heat—the ministers designated a high-level three-man commission to draft a new gambling law.

The main street of Helena, Mont., was once named "Last Chance Gulch" by four discouraged prospectors. They decided to give up prospecting if they didn't find gold there. They found one of the biggest gold strikes in history.

YOUR INCOME TAX NO. 4

New Rule Is Designed To Flush Out Profits Made On Expense Accounts

EDITOR'S NOTE: This series has already discussed which form is best, classes of returns, exemptions and nontaxable income. Today's topic is job-connected expenses and expense accounts. Future articles will explain deductions and provide tips on guarding against errors. Clip and save all for use when you begin filling out your return.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Staff Writer

For 37 years, Uncle Sam has been trying to ferret out chiselers who make money on expense accounts but try to escape getting taxed on their profit. This year he's trying something new.

All tax forms have been revised so every taxpayer has to give yes or no answers about expense accounts.

Ever since 1921, the law has required taxpayers to report as income all money received on expense accounts. Such income could be offset, at least in part, by deducting actual job-connected expenses.

SOME NEW RULES

In addition to revising the tax forms, the Internal Revenue Service this year has changed the rules for listing expense money as income. They boil down to this:

So long as you didn't make a profit on your expense account—by collecting more than you spent—you don't have to list expense money as income.

If you did make a profit, you have to report it as "excess reimbursements" on line 5 of tax form 1040 (you can't use the simple form 1040A) and pay a tax on it.

Even if you didn't make a profit, it may pay you to give IRS an accounting of your expense money. This could be the case if you spent more money in connection with your job than you collected on your expense account.

If so, you can list expense money as income and deduct your actual expenses. Some of these expenses can be deducted on page 1 of form 1040 and some can be deducted only if you itemize deductions on page 2. The different categories will be explained later.

FORM 1040 ONLY

Any taxpayer who chooses to deduct job-connected expenses must use form 1040.

Regardless of which form you use, however, you're going to have to answer at least one question about expense money.

Line 8 of form 1040A has a new box which you check if you had to account to your employer for the expense money he gave you during 1958. The accompanying instructions state that if you didn't account for expense money, or collected more than you spent, you must file form 1040.

On form 1040, two new questions have been added on page 1. They must be answered by everyone using this form. The questions:

1. "Did you receive an expense allowance or reimbursement, or charge expenses to your employer?"

2. "If 'yes,' did you submit an itemized accounting of expenses to your employer?"

A "no" answer to the first question means you can forget about the problem of job expenses as far as IRS is concerned. However, if you had job-connected expenses and weren't reimbursed by your employer, you can still claim deductions for these outlays.

If you answer "no" to the second question, you have to list for IRS your actual job expenses together with expense money received from your employer.

DEDUCTIBLE ITEMS

You can make the accounting on a plain sheet of paper, which you should attach to your tax return. This statement must give the nature of your occupation and list the number of days you were away from home on business during 1958.

In listing your expenses for IRS, you break them down into broad categories such as transportation, meals, lodging and entertainment.

A statement of this type must also be submitted if you report "excess reimbursements" or claim deductions for expenses which exceeded reimbursements.

DEDUCTIBLE ITEMS

Items which you can deduct on line 5 of form 1040 are:

1. Expenses of business trips away from the city where you normally work, provided you stay away at least overnight. You can't include here any entertainment expenses or such personal outlays as getting a suit pressed.

2. Other transportation expenses, though not the cost of getting to and from work. This can cover taxi and streetcar fares and the use of your own auto while on business, even in the city where you work.

3. Expenses of outside salesmen. This includes all necessary and ordinary expenses. It applies only to fulltime salesmen who solicit business for their employers away from their employers' place of business.

4. Any other job-connected expenses. These can be deducted on page 1 form 1040, but only up to the amount for which you were reimbursed by your employer. If you weren't fully reimbursed, the additional expenses must be listed among itemized deductions on page 2 if you want to claim them.

SPECIAL TREATMENT

Like job expenses, sick pay and retirement income get special tax treatment, but within strict limits.

If you were off work in 1958 your employer continued to pay you, at his expense, you can exclude up to $100 a week of such pay. If you continued to draw pay through a plan you paid for, the $100 ceiling doesn't apply.

Your sick pay exclusion begins on the first day you're absent from work if you're injured, or if you are hospitalized for even one day because of illness.

If your absence is due to illness and you aren't hospitalized, the exclusion begins after one week away from work.

Anyone making $100 a week or less excludes from his income one day's pay for each working day covered by the sick pay rules.

If you make more than $100, you divide $100 by the number of days you normally work a week, then multiply this amount by the number of days you're entitled to exclude.

Sick pay exclusions are entered on line 6 of form 1040. You can't claim the exclusion on form 1040A.

ATTACH DATE LIST

You should attach to your return a statement showing the dates you were absent, the nature of your illness or injury, whether or not you were hospitalized and when, and how you figured the amount excluded.

Some income from pensions and annuities can also be excluded. The law permits retired people to get back, tax free, the amount they paid toward pension or annuity plans while working. The rules are spelled out on page 12 of the instruction booklet that goes with form 1040.

Even if some of your pension

or other retirement income is taxable, you may be able to claim a tax credit of up to $240. This is discussed on page 14 of the instructions.

Tomorrow: Itemizing your deductions.

Chinese Reds Not 'Selling' Some Youths

HONG KONG (AP) — The Chinese Reds admit they're having trouble selling communism to the people of China, especially the younger ones.

They say only a minority is making trouble, but the amount of space the Peiping press has been devoting to the problem suggests it's a matter of much concern.

The official journal China Youth reported recently that the establishment of people's communes and their threat of total communism sent some people scurrying to convert personal belongings to cash.

"People who had sewing machines at home could not face the prospect of handing them over for communal use," it said. "At first they tried to hide them, and in the end they sold them."

Under the commune system banks were expected to confiscate personal deposits. This caused a rush on the banks.

Some people, fearing communism would communize their savings deposits, hastily withdrew their money and bought wrist watches and other "consumer goods," the magazine said. "What was left of the money they squandered on drinking and feasting."

China Youth also admitted there is opposition to the military pattern of life in the people's communes, the separation of families and conformity of eating in public mess halls.

"Some people worry over the loss of the bliss of family life entailed in placing children in public nurseries," it said. "Some find life insipid when eating in public mess halls, and others complain about the cobalt pattern of operation and military organization."

Such behavior and reactions are not entirely due to misunderstanding of communism, it added, blaming it in part to that enemy of communism, individualism.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. AGEDIES OF THE SEAS Titanic Greatest Iceberg Disaster

NEW YORK (AP)—The greatest ship-iceberg disaster in history was the sinking of the Titanic with a loss of 1,517 lives in the Atlantic on April 15, 1912.

The White Star liner, like the Danish vessel Hans Hedtoft that struck an iceberg Friday was on her maiden voyage.

The Titanic then was the newest, biggest, most luxurious and—reputedly—the safest ship afloat.

The 852-foot liner, of 46,328 gross tons, was en route from Southampton to New York. Most of the 2,224 passengers and crewmen aboard had retired for the night when shortly before midnight on April 14 she sideswiped a huge iceberg and ripped a long gash in her side.

At 2:20 a.m. the next day, the unbelievable happened. The great "unsinkable" four-stacker slid beneath the sea.

The disaster played no favorites. Carried to their doom along with many steerage passengers were financiers such as John Jacob Astor, Benjamin Guggenheim and Isador Straus.

The Titanic sinking was one of the most dramatic sea stories of all time.

But it was not the greatest in loss of life.

Six thousand Germans reportedly perished in the Baltic in 1945 when Soviet torpedoes sent the German transport Wilhelm Gustloff to the bottom. She was carrying German refugees, including women and children, from Poland as the Soviet forces advanced.

Nazi wartime censorship concealed the disaster.

CEASE-FIRE IS GOALDe Gaulle Renews Pledge To Rebels

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle renewed Friday his offer to Algerian rebel leaders to come to France and arrange a cease-fire in the four-year-old war.

"The war can lead to nothing but useless miseries. It certainly should end," De Gaulle told a nationwide radio audience.

"When" he asked, "Why not quickly, in the honorable conditions that I have proposed?"

De Gaulle's reference was to his Oct. 23 offer to rebel leaders to come to France under safe conduct to discuss a cease-fire. At that time, he also called on rebel troops fighting in Algeria to show the white flag, promising them they would be treated humanely.

The rebels rejected De Gaulle's offer. They said they would talk only on neutral soil and insisted that a political settlement of the rebellion also be discussed. Three days ago, Mohammed Yazid, information minister in the rebel provisional government, restated that same viewpoint.

De Gaulle, who was speaking to the nation for the first time since his installation as president of the Fifth Republic Jan. 8, said that future of Algeria can only be charted by the Algerians themselves through universal suffrage.

The political, economic, social and cultural transformation of Algeria, he said, "will be done with France and no other way."

He referred to a recent upswing in rebel fighting in Algeria and said "as for the fighting and terrorist attacks which certain people persist in prolonging, they will more or less hold up the evolution which is in course, but they can not halt it."

He devoted the remainder of his fireside chat to a review of France's progress since last May, when civil war threatened the country after the revolt of settlers and military leaders in Algiers.

De Gaulle took note of criticism

DEATH FOR CHEATER
NEWCASTLE - ON - TYNE, England (UPI)—Stephen Bowes, 29, died because he tried to cheat the gas company. Testimony at the inquest disclosed that Bowes, an unemployed laborer, used a piece of rubber tubing to bypass the gas meter in his home so that he would not have to pay for the gas. During the night pressure blew the tube off, the room filled with gas, and Bowes died as he slept.

DRAW PRISON TERMS
KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI)—Three leaders of the former Workers' Federation have been sentenced to five years in prison for holding an illegal meeting and associating with international Communist organizations. They were tried secretly by a military tribunal. Four others received lesser sentences and seven were acquitted.
